

Inflation, food shortages affecting school lunches

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The American housewife is not alone in her battle against inflation in the kitchen. The nation's schools are facing higher prices, product shortages and hesitant suppliers as they feed more than 25 million schoolchildren.

The result: schoolchildren now have to leave home with some extra change in their pockets in order to pay for that chocolate milk or apple pie with whipped topping.

An Associated Press survey of school districts shows the cost of preparing a meal has increased 10 to 30 per cent. Children now are paying between 30 and 60 cents, 5 to 10 cents more than they did last year.

Price fluctuations also have caused the schools problems in obtaining suppliers for longterm contracts. Bids are being accepted for shorter periods and many contain an escalator clause that allows the supplier to pass along cost increases.

"We buy on the open market now because nobody wants to sell to us under contract because the price fluctuates so," said Charles Murphy, bid clerk for the San Francisco public schools cafeteria purchasing division.

Howard Briggs, director of food service for the Detroit public schools said: "We used to be able to get a bid and have a firm price for the year. That's no longer possible."

Higher costs and shortages have caused minor changes in some menus. Apple sauce has replaced peaches. Ice cream is served on a plate and not in the costly sugar cone.

None of the supervisors surveyed reported a reduction in the number of meals served or a lowering of quality because of inflation.

Meat was a big problem last year for the schools, but the Agriculture Department made large purchases of beef this year and almost all the schools in the current survey said they have encountered no problems in getting meat.

In New York City, where 91 million lunches were served in 1973, Julius Jacobs, director of the city's bureau of school lunches, said there is plenty of meat this year but there will be less ham on the menu because of its cost and low acceptance by the children.

Most of the supervisors said they served meat four or five times a week with meatless days only in order to vary the menu.

Shortages reported by the supervisors include flour, canned goods — especially fruits — cereal products, and shortening.

Naomi Bond, staff coordinator of cafeterias for the Albuquerque, N.M., schools, said the system had difficulty getting tomato paste and catsup. The Jackson, Miss., school system reported problems with canned fruits, especially pears and peaches. Albert Sabato, director of school lunches in Cincinnati, said his school system was substituting bananas and apple sauce for many hard-to-get canned fruits. The Dallas school system is serving apricots instead of other high-priced fruits. And Kenneth Baer, head of food services for Seattle's schools, said pineapples are pricing themselves off the menu this year.

Sugar and sugar-based items are among the products with the highest price increase.

"Last year we were paying $16.50 per hundred pounds for sugar," said Marjorie Searle, Shawnee, Okla., school lunch director. "And this year it's more than double that right now at $38.20." She said gelatin and puddings are too expensive because of their high sugar content.

Sixth hearing date set for Wilson

A preliminary hearing for Dennis Wilson of Sikeston has been set for the sixth time on Sept. 16 on charges of stealing over the value of $50 in connection with a June 15, 1973 arrest involving stolen vehicles.

Scott County Prosecuting Attorney James E. Moore III says the delay in the preliminary hearing is due to "plea bargaining." Judge Thomas Brown of Charleston, who will preside over the hearing, Friday said it will be held in the Sikeston City courtroom.

Scott County sheriff's office, highway patrolmen and Sikeston police staged a raid on June 15, 1973 in which Wilson, Larry Wayne Gilbert of Essex and Gary Dean Irvin of Morehouse were arrested at Sikeston Auto Salvage, 1615 W. Malone Ave., owned by Wilson, and accused of being involved in a major stolen car ring.

In September 1973, Irvin was bound over to Circuit Court, after a preliminary hearing before Judge Lloyd Briggs.

Although a date has been set several times, Irvin's trial has yet to take place.

Irvin allegedly was in the process of cutting a car in half when the arresting officers staged the raid.

The case against Gilbert was dismissed in Magistrate Court.

Moore said Friday he could not remember who dismissed the case or why.

A highway patrol expert on automobile serial numbers was sent to Sikeston from Kirkwood, June 16, 1973. All of the automobiles seized during the raid were believed stolen in the St. Louis area, then shipped to Sikeston.

The stolen cars apparently were cut apart and sold as parts. When officers arrived at the salvage yard, they found several cars in various stages of being dismantled.

Four motors found in the main building were quickly identified as being stolen, according to officers.

Wilson was released after posting $10,000 bond in connection with the charges filed against him after the raid.

He was arrested again on Oct. 10, 1973 by New Madrid County sheriff's officers on a felonious stealing charge for the alleged theft on Oct. 4, 1973 of the front end of an automobile and two doors stored by the Scott County sheriff's department as evidence against Wilson.

The stolen evidence was removed from the Slusher-Baker Inc. body shop at 1035 S. Main St. in Sikeston, located in northern New Madrid County.

Wilson was later granted a change of venue to Scott County after he was bound over to New Madrid County Circuit Court.

The New Madrid County case is still pending in Scott County and according to New Madrid County Prosecuting Attorney Hal E. Hunter Jr., he does not know when a trial date will be set.

Wilson's case in Scott County has been continued several times.

The first time he appeared in court on July 10, 1973, he waived arraignment and a preliminary hearing was set for July 31, 1973.

On July 31, Wilson's attorney made an application for the disqualification of Judge Briggs, and Judge Brown, Mississippi County Magistrate, was appointed to hear the case. A preliminary hearing was then set for Aug. 21, 1973.

On Aug. 21, the case was continued until Aug. 31, and on that date, the case was again postponed until Sept. 10, 1973.

On Sept. 5, 1973, two motions to suppress evidence were heard by Judge Brown.

The first motion pertained to the search warrant on June 15, 1973, See No. 3, page 10

HEW conciliatory to schools in North

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is taking a conciliatory approach to Northern school desegregation because of "very strong, bitter opposition" north of the Mason-Dixon Line, Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Caspar Weinberger said Friday.

The threat of federal fund cutoffs, used to whip Southern schools into line, frequently would produce more rather than less desegregation in the North, he said in an interview.

"I think we have to face the fact that we are dealing with a very fierce public opposition to desegregation in many Northern cities," said Weinberger, who declined to name any specific trouble spots.

"The bulk of segregated practices occurs in concentrated urban areas of the North where the opposition to busing and various forms of desegregation appears to be far stronger than in the South," he said.

Weinberger conceded that HEW has made greater progress in desegregating Southern schools.

"One of the reasons is, I think, that we had farther to go," he said. "But secondly, the public has been much more willing to accept desegregation in the South."

Weinberger criticized a private civil rights study released Thursday which charged that HEW was dragging its feet on Northern school cases despite evidence in its own files of violations.

"There are frequently many ways you can accomplish a great deal more by persuasion and discussion and negotiations to produce desegregation plans," he said. "There are many situations in which withdrawal of funds promotes more segregation."

"To conclude that we haven't done our job because we haven't withheld federal funds is, I think, a totally unwarranted conclusion," the secretary said.

"We are doing our job under very difficult circumstances where there is a very strong divergence of viewpoints between what the law says and what the public wants."

Ford vows to lick inflation by 200th year

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — President Ford pledged Friday night that before America celebrates its 200th birthday on July 4, 1976, his administration will have halted "the tyranny of double-digit inflation ... the cruelest kind of taxation without representation."

Precisely four weeks to the day after he ascended to the presidency, Ford came to Independence Mall to address a dinner commemorating the 200th anniversary of the First Continental Congress.

He used the occasion to set for the first time a timetable for his administration's anti-inflation battle, although he offered no specifics on his battle plan.

"We are going after the public enemy of inflation in 1974 and we will lick him before July 4, 1976," Ford said.

White House Press Secretary Jerald R. Horst, responding to newsmen's questions, disclosed after the dinner that Ford had decided to establish a "clemency review board" similar to that set up by President Truman after World War II to handle amnesty cases for deserters and draft dodgers.

Ford defended his approach to the problem of inflation, an approach that has drawn criticism from some in Congress.

"Like the patriots who met here 200 years ago, we may seem to move cautiously and too deliberately," Ford said. "But I hope no one will underestimate the fighting ability of Americans today the way some did in 1774."

"I warn you, as wise old Ben Franklin did, that if we do not all hang together we will certainly hang separately. But we will not hang separately nor will we fall divided. We are going after the public enemy of inflation in 1974 and we will lick him before July 4, 1976."

The President cautioned that hard times still lie ahead.

"We will have our Valley Forge, our summer soldiers and our sunshine patriots," he said. "But we are the descendants and heirs ... of the patriots who assembled here 200 years ago tonight ... we must not let them down."

"With your help, we will win the fight against inflation," Ford said. "What better way can we begin our third century of independence as a nation of liberty under God and brotherly love for all?"

Ford did not spell out or detail his battle plan to fight inflation in his address.

He spoke to 1,500 guests gathered on a rainy night beneath a yellow and white striped tent across the street from Independence Hall.

He was to return to the White House after his speech but planned to be in Pennsylvania again Monday to address an urban transportation conference in Pittsburgh as he accelerates his schedule of public appearances.

Earlier Friday, the reconvened First Continental Congress ended in harmony as delegates from the 13 original states unanimously reaffirmed the right of Americans to personal freedom, privacy and equal economic opportunity.

The resolutions, ironed out in a spirit of compromise and good humor, concluded the first formal business of the nation's bicentennial celebration.

The two-day meeting commemorated the 200th anniversary of the Congress where the chain of events began that led to the Declaration of Independence here on July 4, 1776.

Participating in the proceedings were delegates from New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia.

They quibbled, sometimes tongue-in-cheek, over language of the resolutions before voting approval.

On privacy, the delegates called on Congress "to reappraise and, if necessary, to take action with respect to the potential threat to personal freedom and the right to privacy by uses and misuses in the collection and

Farmland value up sharply

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — The value of Missouri farmland rose by 29 per cent in a year, an agricultural economist has reported, and this not only set a record but is more than twice as much as in any year in the past decade.

The figures were provided Friday by Paul R. Taylor, farm management specialist at the University of Missouri.

"The average value of an acre of Missouri farmland was $376 in March, Taylor said. "This was $85 above March of 1973."

Taylor said every time there is a dramatic increase in land prices most economists predict the rate of climb will slow down. That's what they did after the 12 per cent increase from 1972 to 1973. The average increase from 1963 to 1973 was 8.5 per cent a year.

"This year, I think the prediction could be true," Taylor said.

The record 29 per cent increase in Missouri was above the U.S. average of 25 per cent but still below the 34 per cent registered in neighboring Iowa and Illinois.

North Dakota had the greatest increase at 36 per cent, and 12 states were above 30.

The average farm in Missouri has 236 acres.

"At $376 an acre, that puts the value of an average farm at $88,736 — about $20,000 more than a year earlier," Taylor said.

"That's real great if you own a farm but discouraging if you want to buy one."

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

These days there is only one way to go - broke.

I do not know what should be done with the man who cannot get a job, or cannot hold one when he gets it. He has always been a problem, and always will be on the hands of the industrious. But I do not believe we should hang those who find work, and who perform it with reasonable satisfaction.

SETTING UP HOUSEKEEPING

Vivid in the memory of every married couple is the event of "setting up housekeeping" in their first home or apartment. Imagine, however, moving into a home with 150 rooms, 39 bathrooms, several kitchens, a solarium, barbershop, movie theatre, a bomb shelter, and 147 windows to wash.

And, although this isn't their first home, it was truly a major event in the lives of Jerry and Betty Ford to move into the "First" home of our nation — the building which has come to be known as the "White House." For the first time, President Ford does not have a key to his dwelling place — which, now, is not only his home, but office and goldfish bowl as well.

John and Abigail Adams were the first to move into the White House, in 1800, while carpenters and bricklayers were still busy with its construction. Jefferson, who enjoyed good company, was the first to invite numbers of guests to dinner, a practice which has become firmly rooted in American tradition. Andrew Jackson, who became President in 1829 and was the first Chief Executive who did not come from an affluent family, established the "log cabin to the White House" legend which has become world-renowned. Only in American could its leaders come from other than aristocracy. Indeed, even then, many were scandalized when former "log cabin" associates and friends of Jackson stayed at the now famous "House" in Washington.

In 1848, President and Mrs. Polk introduced a fabulous new invention called "gas lighting," replacing the hundreds of wax candles used for illumination until that time. President Arthur installed the first elevator, and Benjamin Harrison introduced electric lighting (in 1889), but the Harrisons were so fearful of getting a shock from the newfangled lights that they didn't dare to turn them on or off. To take care of that chore, they kept the electrician on the job — and he stayed for 42 years, as Chief Usher.

With up to 40,000 visitors a week trudging through the rooms and halls, Mrs. Ford will have plenty of "housekeeping" to manage, what with 600,000 square feet of wood floors to mop and shine, 15,000 square feet of carpeting to vacuum and some of our nation's most valuable antiques to dust and polish — to say nothing of those 147 windows.

Fortunately, Betty Ford will have a few helpers to assist her in these chores. As she declared: "I really don't consider it my house; I consider it the house of the people of the United States ... I can't imagine anyone being more delighted than I am."

We wish Betty Ford and her family all of the happiness possible as she moves her home to the "House."

THE SAGGING ECONOMY

WASHINGTON -- The people who cried "Let's forget about Watergate so we can get on with the business of running the country" are now singing another tune. Roger Petulant, a neighbor, who is furious with the way the press played up Watergate walked over to my driveway the other day and said, "All you guys ever write about now is the sagging economy. Why don't you put the economy behind you so we can get on with the business of running the country?"

I explained to Roger that it wasn't my decision to make the economy the major issue of the month. I was on vacation and some subordinate chose it as the big news story to replace Watergate. "If I had been here," I said, "I would have gone with how much money Nelson Rockefeller has."

"Well," said Petulant, "people are getting sick and tired of you guys picking on government spending and two-digit inflation all the time. Good grief, we've always had government spending and inflation. What's the big deal about a sagging economy?" "It isn't just government spending, Roger," I said. "It's also the stock market which has gone to hell, the bank loan rates that have soared to the skies and the price of food and oil. We can't just close our eyes to these things."

"Why not? If you ask me," Petulant said, "I think you guys just cooked up the sagging economy to sell newspapers." "Now, wait a minute, Roger," I said angrily, "I warned you that the day we stopped printing stories about Watergate we'd all be in trouble. Watergate kept this country going for two years. We had inflation, high grocery prices and automobile cost raises before but no one cared.

CLOSE TO THE HEARTSIDE

Mrs. Helen Bentley, first woman chairman of the Federal Maritime Commission, explains very simply why every home is dependent upon merchant vessels plying the seas of the world in behalf of American international commerce. An article in "Progressive Woman" quotes her as saying: "Practically every article Americans use in day-to-day living requires imported material ... to produce. Take the aluminum chair on your patio, the electric light you read by, your TV set, radio, or the car in your garage..."

Mrs. Bentley then explained why the U.S. cannot depend on the vessels of foreign nations to carry its trade. The reason is that they are unavailable when needed most. These facts emphasize the direct concern the nation has with moving rapidly ahead with the government-industry program of new ship construction provided for under the Merchant Marine Act of 1970 and with measures to make those ships competitive with foreign shipping in securing cargoes. This urgency applies to oil tankers as well as other vessels since they are a growing part of the U.S. energy supply lifeline.

In all phrases of its operation, the U.S. Merchant Marine is as close to the heartside of every home as it was in the days of the famed clipper ships. Neither catastrophic strikes by longshoremen nor foreign competition should ever be permitted to undermine the U.S. Merchant Marine. It is a key element of domestic well-being and a primary factor in overall U.S. sea power.

WORKMEN'S COMP REFORM BY STATES IS URGED BY NAM

An appeal to the Senate to encourage reform and control by the separate states of Workmen's Compensation programs has been issued by the National Association of Manufacturers.

NAM President E. Douglas Kenna, in a letter to Members of the United States Senate, said he hoped that further hearings by the Labor Subcommittee of the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee would give major emphasis to ways of assisting the states in reform and elimination of Workmen's Compensation abuses, rather than to emphasize state deficiencies and federal control. Mr. Kenna said "state programs have demonstrated sufficient success to deserve the opportunity to meet the challenge for improvement within the present system and not by federal fiat."

A few months after moving to a small town a woman complained to a neighbor about the poor service at the local drug store. She hoped the new acquaintance would repeat her complaint to the owner.

Next time she went to the drug store, the druggist greeted her with a big smile, told her how happy he was to see her again. He said he hoped she liked their town and to please let him know if there was anything he could do to help her and her husband get settled. He then filled her order promptly and efficiently.

Later the woman reported the miraculous change to her friend. "I suppose you told the druggist how poor I thought the service was?" she asked. "Well, no," the woman said. "In fact — and I hope you don't mind — I told him you were amazed at the way he had built up this small town drug store, and that you thought it was one of the best run drug stores you'd ever seen."

A mother and her convent-raised young daughter were riding in a taxi one evening through a midtown block notorious for early-hour street solicitation. "What are those women waiting for, Mother?" the girl inquired.

"They're probably meeting their husbands there after work," replied the woman hastily.

"Aw, c'mon, lady," replied the cabdriver. "why don'tcha tell her the truth? She's old enough."

"Please, Mom," said the girl. "I want to know." Looking daggers at the back of the driver's head, the woman carefully explained the situation. When she had finished, the daughter sked, "But what happens to the babies those women have?"

"They grow up," the mother whispered loudly, "and become taxi drivers."

FIRST PRIORITY TASK

Washington-Merry-Go-Round

by Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:

WASHINGTON -- A less bombastic Fidel Castro is now on his best behavior, as he strives to bring Cuba into the society of Western Hemisphere nations. But hidden from the prominent visitors he has enticed to Cuba is an unspeakable world of political oppression.

We have written about the terror and torture in the prisons of Brazil's right-wing dictatorship. Now we have received evidence of similar tactics in the prisons of Cuba's left-wing dictatorship.

Just as Brazilian political prisoners smuggled their stark stories to us through priests, Castro's prisoners have managed to smuggle letters, affidavits and other evidence to the U.S. with directions that they be delivered to us.

We have checked out their charges, as best we could, with former prisoners who have been released from Castro's custody. We are willing to make a personal inspection of these prisoners, if Castro will permit it, as we also offered to do in Brazil.

The letters and affidavits describe a horror which, for the unhappy souls who run afoul of Castro's political police, usually begins with a frightening, after-midnight arrest.

"You and your family are all fast asleep," states one affidavit, "when the tremendous knocking at your front and back doors starts. About six or seven G-2 men, armed to the teeth with Russian machine guns, rush in your house, screaming, pushing your family, searching your home, not allowing your wife or children to go to the bedroom to put their clothes on."

"They insult you with every filthy name in the book. Finally they push you outside, with your family crying, and initiate strong measures for rehabilitating the railroads and other regulated surface carriers. During the 12-months in question, the Association of American Railroads reports that the rate of return—operating income as a percent of investment in property used in rail transportation service—was 2.53 percent. The Interstate Commerce Commission has said the railroads must earn 6 percent if they are to provide needed service improvements.

Even the railroads' competitors, the regulated water and motor carriers, have submerged short-range interests to the nation's needs. They have joined with the railroads in pressing for legislation to strengthen the overall transportation system. Speaking for the proposed Surface Transportation Act of 1971 that was before Congress last year, Mr. William A. Bresnahan, president of the American Trucking Associations, indicated the general feeling of regulated surface carriers when he said, "Admittedly each feature of the proposed legislation does not apply with equal impact to all forms of surface transportation. In fact, some features have almost exclusive application to one form or another. Our concern here, however, is not a matter of gains or losses for one form as concerned with another. We are concerned, by contrast, with the general health and financial stability of the entire system..."

The first task of Congress in 1972 should be to address itself to the problems of the transportation system by which this nation moves and lives.

"Why won't you go out with me?" the bachelor asked. "Last night, you said there was something you liked about me."

There was, the girl replied, "but you spent it all."

The real economic danger ahead is not that we will have some kind of economic setback in 1974 and 1975. We have already had it, and while there may be some improvement in the next year and a half, hardly anybody expects that 1974 or 1975 will be a great year or even a very good year.

The real danger is that, in this atmosphere of economic performance widely regarded as sub-par, policymakers will turn again to fiscal and monetary stimulation as the needed tonic. That kind of move might indeed succeed for a while in pepping up the economy. But it would also give one more turn to the inflationary screw. We would very likely wind up (if not immediately, after an interval of a couple of years) with a rate of price climb even worse than the horrendous rate of the past year.

The reason for this fear is that, during the past 10 years, we have twice before faced the same general economic situation we face now. Twice before national economic policy was reversed—from fiscal and monetary restraint to curb inflation, to fiscal and monetary stimulation to restore full employment. Twice before we wound up, two to were running, we were being hit by the guards with clubs, bayonets and iron sticks. Then down again into the hole, again being hit by the guards."

Most of all, the prisoners dreaded the "riquisa," as the cell searches were called. "The guards come into your gallery after midnight," according to one account, "and line you up outside or against the wall. They start to throw everything you own outside and douse water all over your bed, which normally is thrown from one end of the gallery to the other."

"You also get beat up. When you are taken outside, nude, the militiamen (women guards) stand in the patio and laugh at your nakedness."

At the Isle of Pines prison, the prisoners were welcomed off the ferry boat by "guards on both sides of the gangplank, hitting us as we passed by them, and I mean hitting with clubs and sticking us with their bayonets, just for fun I guess," states one letter.

The prisoners at the Isles of Pines got up at 5 a.m. and worked until 6 p.m. "cutting weeds, planting trees, picking fruit." "God forbid," reported one former prisoner, "if they should catch you eating a piece of fruit. The guards would make mince meat out of you with their bayonets."

The prisoners were subjected to daily beatings, according to the smuggled documents. "There was seldom a month in the Island when they did not kill one or two prisoners in the work camp, or cut them up, crippling them, or something," charges an affidavit.

The documents give detailed descriptions of the prisons, enclose typical menus and name some of the most brutal guards. One prisoner, risking almost certain retaliation, has asked us to tell his personal story. This will be published in a future column.

three years later, with prices rising faster than at the start of the process, and the whole job of restraining inflation to be done over again.

At this point the economic situation again resembles the conditions of early 1967 and mid-1971. The economic slowdown again is worrying government officials. Again there is impatience with the apparent fact that the slowdown has not helped to control inflation. Again we hear calls for restimulating the economy.

The Chairman of the Federal Reserve System has indicated his firm determination to resist any shift to a more liberal money and credit policy. But he is under heavy pressure. It is a question whether he will be able to maintain his position if a serious credit shortage results and if the recovery of the housing industry is retarded by a lack of funds for financing mortgages.

In Congress there are advocates of a broad-gauge tax cut, amounting to a $6 billion loss in federal revenue. This, it is argued, would restore purchasing power and bring us out of the present recession, slowdown or whatever you want to call it.

If we listen to these siren songs, and once again undertake to stimulate the economy to a higher level of output and employment, we will establish the base for a fourth wave of inflation. It will surely be worse than any of the preceding three waves including the present situation.

The alternative is to endure a period of sluggish economic conditions, lasting for perhaps two to three years. This will be our penance for past inflationary sins. The only thing you can say in favor of that course of action is that the penance gets worse the longer you delay it.

A little old lady was held up on the street by a gigantic thug armed with a pistol. "You should be ashamed of yourself, holding up a poor old woman," she scolded. "A man your size should be holding up a bank."

Life would be very simple if more people were willing to be themselves.

GOOD ADVICE FOR SHOPPERS

The president of the Better Business Bureau of Metropolitan New York, Inc., Mr. Woodrow Wirsig, offers some advice to consumers that, if followed, would go a long way toward solving most consumer protection problems.

In a brief Reader's Digest piece, entitled "Six Steps to Smarter Shopping", he shows why some consumers "...never seem to have any big problems in their buying. Their appliances work, their servicemen do repairs promptly and reasonable, nothing ever seems to get unmanageable." These consumers, finds Mr. Wirsig, "...pay attention to... six operating principles... when they shop." These principles he lists as follows: 1. Always shop in reputable stores and deal with reputable companies. 2. Don't look for "something for nothing." It doesn't exist. 3. Shop around, comparing prices and values, before you make a major purchase. 4. Before doing business with a repair service unknown to you, check the experiences of your friends—and call your Better Business Bureau for its file report. 5. Read contracts and warranties before you sign any installment contract. Be sure you understand. 6. If you cannot get satisfaction from a store, manufacturer or service shop, write the details of your problem to your Better Business Bureau.

If consumers will but realize it, reputable businessmen and business establishments, which represent the vast majority of all those with whom consumers deal, are more than anxious to please consumers—to do a good job. No one knows better than the businessman, the manufacturer or the dealer that business longevity depends on consumer satisfaction.

Betch didn't know...

That before you girls complain because your bread won't rise, you'd better check to see if something's wrong with your toaster!

Danger on the 'Left'; 'Mysteriously well-financed' revolutionary bands roaming Capitol and Industrial centers

WASHINGTON — Revolutionary specters are stalking Capitol Hill. They are young and, in a weird almost hypnotic fashion, intensely bright though they speak of a strange revolution as though they were mannequins with Marxist-Leninist cassettes as voice-box implants.

They are heavily loaded with muscle, mind and money -- and use all three frequently in violent profusion.

They, and a string of other revolutionary sects, range the nation -- and most of the Western world. Their organizers and pickets have been active all the way from Stockholm to Brussels to London (where I observed them) and especially in "concentration" in New York, Philadelphia and Detroit.

One or another of these bands has shut down huge industrial installations. They have harassed Congressmen, political leaders, a city council or two, and appear intent on infiltrating and disrupting the massive United Automobile Workers (UAW) union.

Lest there be skeptics among those who read this, let me rush in with a recent report on the "New Left, the Far Left and the Radical Left of the mid-1970s" recently presented to some 200 officials of the giant Detroit Ford local, UAW. The man who spoke of this network of revolutionaries rarely attacks the left. For him to do so is as startling as would be a new committee for the reelection of ex-President Nixon organized by Sam Ervin and Peter Rodino, with John Doar as executive director.

The man who blasted this weird phenomenon of the mid-70s is Emil Mazey (now recovering from a benign spine operation), secretary-treasurer and second-in-command of the UAW. Mazey is an old direct actionist himself, once a leader of the first American sit-down strikers in Detroit, and an avowed socialist.

He knows of whom he speaks. And he spoke in these terms:

The groups, many of them "mysteriously well-financed" have leafleted and picketed UAW president Leonard Woodcock and other elected union officers in places as far apart as Stockholm, Detroit, Bursells and New York, Mazey said.

The revolutionary units have put out newspapers in English, Swedish, German and several other languages including Arabic.

Last July in Stockholm, for example, during a world conference of the powerful "secretariat" known as the International Metalworkers Federation, at least one such revolutionary organization published anti-Woodcock newspapers almost daily in several languages. The same group has broken up press conferences, slugged other radicals and today wanders through the congressional halls with its literature.

During his report Mazey said that a recent unauthorized strike at a Dodge truck plant in Warren, Mich., "was led by a Maoist Communist." The latter according to Mazey belongs to something called the Revolutionary Union (RU) which began in the San Francisco Bay Area and moved eastward.

The propaganda guerrillas are of many kinds. Almost a throwback to the names and hysteria and in-fighting of the '20s and '30s, the records reveal. There are the Spartacus League, which publishes the Workers Vanguard, "an offshoot of the Trotskyite movement"; the Workers Action Movement (WAM) (which shut down at least one big factory for several shifts); the Progressive Labor Party and some fronts of the violence-oriented, elusive Weather people still directed from the underground by Bernardine Dohrn.

But most active is the National Caucus of Labor Committees (NCLC). This is the far-flung organization which angers Mazey most.

This is the strange outfit, well financed, which ranges the Western world.

As Mazey puts it, the group "that probably is the scariest of the bunch is the NCLC. This group accuses Woodcock of being in league with the CIA."

It has disrupted news conferences and meetings at which Woodcock spoke in New York, Detroit and Europe. It is the organization which "papers" Capitol Hill. Its finances are domestically raised. No one knows quite how.

But what of the others? What of the startling statement by Mazey that some are "mysteriously well-financed"? What of those cells and communes which can charter buses for "concentration" on the UAW and Detroit's industrialism and publish costly weekly and monthly newspapers and magazines urging direct violent action against big factories?

Therefore is this the time for the House of Representatives to be waiting for the Rules committee to decide whether the House Committee on Internal Security should be abolished, or merged with the Judiciary or Government Operations Committee and so disappear just to save a few dollars on the triple billion-dollar budget?

These are very lively specters stalking this nation and Capitol Hill or the militant veteran Mazey would not denounce this weird revolutionary and violent "left."

Hollywood guest visits in Sikeston

50 years ago
September 7, 1924
Dexter -- Mrs. G. W. Wedel and children moved to Sikeston Tuesday. Mr. Wedel has been in business at that place for several months. Dexter people regret the departure of this excellent family for they were good citizens.

Mrs. Henry B. Murtagh of Hollywood, Calif., was in Sikeston Saturday for a day's visit with friends en route to her home from Buffalo, N.Y., where she has been for the past two months. She will visit in Union City, Jackson, and Memphis before going to California. Mrs. Murtagh was formerly Wootson Davis of Sikeston.

Miss Mary George Lee spent Saturday and Sunday in Cape Girardeau. Mrs. Gertrude Lee and daughter, Hontis, Ernestine Moffitt, and Marvin Carroll motored to Cape Sunday and brought Miss Lee home.

Mrs. T. E. Duffy and sons, who have been visiting the former's sister, Mrs. Ed Kendall and family of Kewanee, returned to their home in East St. Louis Monday.

Miss Frances Welch entertained Saturday with a dinner celebrating her birth anniversary.

Miss Hazel Young will leave Saturday for Fulton, Mo., where she will attend William Woods College this year.

Harry Young, Jr., and Ed Markham of Cape Girardeau will leave Saturday for Lexington, Va., where they will attend school. Mr. Young will attend Virginia Military Institute, and Mr. Markham, Washington Lee University.

The Sikeston public school enrollment has already equalled the total recorded at the end of September, 1933, and will undoubtedly reach the pre-enrollment estimate made in August. Superintendent Roy V. Ellise said Wednesday. The present total enrollment in the grammar and high schools is 1,247. On October 1 of last year 1,250 students were taking courses offered at the schools.

Memphis Friday for a few days visit at the Weldon Maddox home.

Lt. John Tandy has been named acting captain and Troop Commander of Troop E of the Missouri Highway Patrol, succeeding Captain O. L. Wallis, who has been appointed acting superintendent of the organization, it was announced on August 26.

A record-breaking enrollment of 2,957 pupils was recorded at the opening day of the Sikeston public schools here Tuesday, according to Supt. Lynn Twitty, who declared the figure is 175 more than the 2,782 who enrolled opening day last fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Hicks, Gray Ridge, Mo., are parents of a baby boy born at the Delta Community Hospital on Tuesday.

The staff and office committee of the Cotton Boll Area Girl Scout council have hired Mrs. Sue Taylor as full time secretary to replace Mrs. Charles Oliver, whose husband recently returned from Korea. Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Williams of Blodgett are parents of a baby girl born at the Delta Community Hospital on Wednesday.

Bridge faces delay

DEXTER -- Work is currently under way on the construction of a bridge that will help to tie the Dexter industrial area into the downtown area. But it will take court proceedings before the project can be finally completed, city officials said Thursday.

The bridge is being built at the intersection of Cooper Street, Arvin Road and Highway 114 in west Dexter. Hessling Brothers Construction Co. is the contractor for the bridge construction. The street project is under contract to Keener Gravel Co.

The road reaching from the downtown area to the industrial area will not be completed until court action is completed on a condemnation suit against Calvary Baptist Church. The city is seeking the property for the street by condemnation, and the proceedings have been filed in Circuit Court.

Hessling Brothers will also build a second bridge at the intersection with Two Mile Road, thus completing the "loop" of the street through the downtown area, giving the industrial area two entrances and exits. Traffic in the area is rapidly increasing as industrial expansion continues.

Work is progressing satisfactorily on the new bridge which should be completed in a week or so, city officials said. Work will then begin on the second bridge at Two Mile Road, officials said.

The completion of the street at the Highway 114 intersection will permit traffic to move easily from the industrial area into the business area of the town and will also help to ease the traffic congestion in that part of the city, it was pointed out.

Engineering work on the project is being done by C. R. Trotter and Associates, with engineer Terry Howes in charge.

10 arrested

Police Friday announced 10 arrests, including four peace disturbance and three assault and battery citations.

The assault and battery arrests included: Tyrone Price, 213 Fuchs St., Robert Lee Jimerson, 105 Westgate St., and Donald Taylor, 211 Marian St.

Arrested for peace disturbance were William T. Eberly, Route One, William Travis Kingston of Cleburne, Tex., Debbie Sue Smith, 203 S. Handy St., and Donald J. Clark, 402 Daniel St., Apartment 2.

Other arrests included: Kenny Bill Jones of Benton Route One, public intoxication; Stephen William Hampton, 206 Jarvis St., no driver's license; and Walter N. Hedrick, 310 Kramer Drive, maintaining a public nuisance.

SeMo Shrine Club seeks 50 members

SeMo Shrine Club has begun a membership drive to enroll at least 50 new members from the ranks of the Scottish and York Rite Masons in this area, it was announced today by Laddie Latham of Matthews, president.

All Shriners must be Masons and members of the Scottish or York rites. The SeMo Shrine Club has a membership of 130.

The club, which is a branch of Moolah Shrine Temple in St. Louis, must have applications for new candidates for the fall ceremonial turned in by Sept. 15.

The fall ceremonial will be in Cape Girardeau on Sept. 28.

Latham asks all interested and qualified applicants in this area to phone him at 471-3792 if they do not have a friend who is a Shriner. "I'll be happy to give their application personal attention," he said.

He said calls to other officers of the club, L. E. Webb of Sikeston, 471-1503, Henry Bussey of Sikeston, 471-2287, or any club member will help prospective new members obtain applications.

Latham said he hopes 400 new members will be added in the eastern half of Missouri to the 10,500 who are already members of Moolah Temple.

Clubs that will participate in the Sept. 28 parade at Cape Girardeau will be SeMo Shrine Club, based in Sikeston; Three Rivers Shrine Club of Poplar Bluff; ECMO Shrine Club of Farmington; and Cape Shrine Club of Cape Girardeau.

Latham said Moolah Potentate Arthur C. Haack is conducting an intensive campaign throughout eastern Missouri to build Moolah membership.

The primary reason Haack gives for the membership drive is to make possible the continuation of Shrine health services, the 22 free Shrine hospitals for crippled children and the burns institutes which annually spend about $30 million aiding more than 10,000 children.

"We have a job to do in supporting our hospitals and burns units, particularly in these highly inflationary times," Latham said. Costs are rising all the time and we need the help of as many good men as possible to keep the world's greatest charity in motion.

He said there are 114,000 masons in Missouri. "Surely, there are many thousands who would join if they were asked. Well, we're asking them now."

What's the law?

Unwelcomed genius poses legal problem

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Roger was a scientist of such great brilliance that sunglasses were almost a prerequisite in order to look at him. In addition to his genius, however, he was tall, dark and handsome. It was the "dark" part, however, that caused him some difficulty at a fancy luncheon one day at a fancy club. The luncheon was for scientists and the owner of the club, grabbing a plate right out of Roger's hands, informed him that negroes weren't welcomed at the club.

Leaving the club alone, Roger didn't leave the club alone for long. He sued the club and its owner for assault and battery and for his embarrassment.

"As smart as he may be," responded the club owner, "Roger obviously doesn't know everything. For example, he doesn't know that assault and battery occurs only when someone strikes another or when a person acts in such a fashion as to cause a person to fear for his safety. And, I did neither. In fact, I barely looked at Roger."

"While he may not have touched me and while he may not have scared me," conceded the scientist in turn, "he did snatch a plate out of my hands. And that should be sufficient to entitle me to collect for assault and battery and for the embarrassment he caused me."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the club owner pay?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that grabbing something from a person or touching anything connected with him in an offensive manner, such as an article of clothing, is sufficient to constitute assault and battery. What's more, concluded the judge, considering the manner in which the club owner snatched the plate away from Roger and the circumstances under which it occurred justified punitive damages.

Ann Landers

Special poem 'beautiful'

Dear Ann Landers: I am a woman 45 years of age and considered good looking. I've always had trouble with my teeth and confess I haven't taken care of them properly. Now the dentist tells me I must have a complete extraction, which means every tooth in my head has got to come out. According to him I have a bad infection of the gums which could ruin my whole system. He says it's the best way, because the few teeth that I would have left after pulling the bad ones would make bridgework impossible.

I dread the thought of dentures. I'm sure I will look old and I hate the idea. Also, I was recently divorced and I'm afraid a woman with dentures would have a harder time getting married.

A friend of mine who had dentures made last year claims it ruined her romance because she was afraid to kiss the man she was going with, and he finally dropped her. Please advise. -- Yea Or Nay?

Dear Y.: If you don't believe your dentist, get another opinion.

As for "looking old" and having your sex life damaged, I'm sure plenty of people with dentures have better sex lives than they had when they were walking around with teeth that should have been extracted.

Dear Ann Landers: Will you print this beautiful poem for parents who have a very "special child"? It struck me as the most moving and supportive thing I had ever read. I'm sure it will mean a great deal to those who have "special" children. Thank you, in advance. -- Your friend, Essee Kucpinet.

Dear Essee: I agree. The poem is beautiful. Here it is. Thanks for sending it on.

HEAVEN'S VERY SPECIAL CHILD

A meeting was held quite far from Earth.
"It's time again for another birth."
Said the angels to the Lord above,
"This special child will need much love."
His progress may seem very slow,
Accomplishments he may not show.
And he'll require extra care
From the folks he meets way down there.
He may not run or laugh or play;
His thoughts may seem

In many ways he won't adapt,
And he'll be known as handicapped.
So let's be careful where he's sent,
We want his life to be content,
Please, Lord, find parents who Will do a special job for you.
They will not realize right away
The leading role they're asked to play.
But with this child sent from above
Comes stronger faith and richer love.
And soon they'll know the privilege given
In caring for this gift from Heaven.
Their precious charge, so meek and mild
Is Heaven's very special child."

WHAT IS MOST IMPORTANT WHEN SELECTING A HEARING AID?

By The most important consideration when selecting a hearing aid... is your selection of a hearing aid center.

Hearing aids are not like a transistor radio. You just don't buy one and use it. They are individual. There are many different makes, shapes and sizes. A model that would be perfect for one person could fail for another.

Our hearing aid center can find the correct hearing aid for you. It is important, therefore, that you take your hearing problem to the expert: A specialist who is experienced in testing hearing difficulties.

Have you seen the Clarifier® "hearing glasses"? They are specially fitted, effective, attractive and popular. See ours today.

If you have any questions concerning your hearing, or have any interesting facts or stories on hearing, please call, visit or write to us at

The Sikeston Bulldogs opened their 1974 football campaign on a sad note as the Farmington Knights handed the gallant Dogs a 7-6 defeat, handing coach Terry Smith's team their fifth straight setback going back to the 1973 season.

Penalties spelled defeat for Sikeston as three mistakes at crucial times in the game either helped the Knights score or kept the Bulldogs off the scoreboard.

Sikeston's defense picked up where the 1973 team left off as the Farmington team outweighed the Bulldogs defense an average of 20 pounds per man but Sikeston held the big Knights to 155 yards rushing while the Bulldogs rushed for 218 yards.

The first half was a completely defensive game particularly throughout the first quarter as neither offense could penetrate the opponent's defense.

Sikeston's defense shined in the first period as Farmington kicked off and held the Bulldogs to a standstill, and the game was played deep in Bulldog territory.

In the second period Sikeston began to roll offensively as the Bulldog defense held Farmington deep in side their own territory. Quarterback Tom Luber burst up the middle for 45 yards and a personal foul penalty helped the Bulldogs down to the 15 yard line where the first penalty for Sikeston actually cost them the football game. Tom DeRoush broke through the middle of the line for the 15 yards into the endzone but a holding penalty nullified the touchdown and moved the Bulldogs back to the Farmington 30 yard line where Sikeston was unable to come back down field. The half ended in a scoreless tie.

Farmington came out in the third period and began to use the weight advantage of the backs to break through the line. Harry Hull did the bulk of the running but a 31 yard gallop by quarterback Jim McKinney carried the ball to the Sikeston 28 where safety David Shell made a temporary touchdown saving tackle from behind.

Only seconds later the second crucial penalty helped the Knights to the first touchdown of the game and a 7-0 lead. The quarterback carried the ball to the 21 yard line where a face mask foul was called against Sikeston to allow Farmington to start from the Bulldog six yard line where Hull scored two plays later from the four.

Sikeston made an attempt to march downfield but the inability to complete passes caused the offense to bog down at the end of the third quarter.

Sikeston punted into the Farmington endzone and the Knights started their offense from the 20 yard line but a courageous defense led by John Ralph stood strong against the heavy Farmington offensive line and Sikeston took over on their own 21 yard line after a punt.

Ron Friday took over at quarterback from Tom Luber and marched Sikeston downfield toward the Farmington goal line. Larry Blue, who had been held in check by the Knight Line throughout the first half and third period burst up the middle for 30 yards to the Farmington 49 yard line. Blue came right back for another long gainer to the 24 yard line with six minutes left in the game and trailing 7-0.

Mike Lambert plunged off tackle for eight yards to the 19 and with third down and one yard to go for a first down Tom DeRoush once again burst up the middle for the final yardage and a touchdown to make the score 7-6.

The Bulldogs made their third and final mistake which ended up costing them at least a tie as a delay in game penalty moved the ball back five yards for the extra point try which was missed on a pass attempt in the endzone by Ron Friday.

Coach Smith seems to have a fine defensive unit to complete with but must do some work on the offense as the weeks roll by or else Sikeston's opponents will wear the defense down as each game rolls along into the second half.

Farmington made mistakes in the game also but Sikeston outplayed the Knights throughout the entire game but the penalties told the final story.

Sikeston was led in rushing by Tom DeRoush. Larry Blue opened up a little in the fourth quarter. Tom Luber ran the keeper very well breaking loose for a couple of long gainers before being replaced by Ron Friday at quarterback.

The Bulldogs outgained Farmington 89 yards to 80 in the first half but Farmington ran the most plays, 28 to the Bulldogs 19.

Eagles fly high

STEELE — The Eagles of East Prairie are flying high tonight. East Prairie traveled to South Pemiscot and came home victors in the opening football game for both schools by a score of 27 to 12.

The turning point of the ball game may have occurred in the first two minutes of the ballgame. The Bulldog's of South Pemiscot received the opening kickoff. East Prairie blocked their first punt and recovered the ball in the Bulldog's end zone for a touchdown. Midway through the first quarter The Eagles scored on a half back option around left end from fifty yards out. East Prairie scored both of their extra points and the half-time score was 14-0 Eagles.

Early in the third quarter South Pemiscot fumbled a punt return on their own 25. Several plays later East Prairie's Bankhead scored on a twenty yard run off left tackle. The teams battled evenly throughout the remaining quarter.

About 1 minute into the fourth quarter East Prairie got the ball and marched on the ground to the Bulldog's 6. Bankhead again scored around rt. end on a 6 yrd. run. About four minutes into the fourth quarter South Pemiscot's left halfback James Cooper scored on a 25 yard sweep around right end. At about the four minute mark the Bulldog's began marching up the field on short passes. Quarterback

Alan McKay passed from the Eagles 35 to left end Alan Becker who waltzed in from the ten. The Bulldogs missed both extra points. Final score: East Prairie 27, South Pemiscot 12.

Exhibition finals this weekend

Dress rehearsals end this weekend for the National Football League with all teams completing their exhibition schedules and a fistful of personnel decisions due to be made.

The Player's Association strike left most training camps bloated with free agents and rookies and some team rosters are still top heavy. They won't be by next Tuesday when the clubs must trim to 47 players. That means plenty of jobs will be on the line this weekend.

Four night games highlight Saturday's schedule with Cleveland at Detroit, San Diego at Minnesota, New Orleans at Houston, and Miami at Chicago. The New York Jets play an afternoon game against Oakland at Berkeley.

On Sunday, Los Angeles will be at San Francisco for a day game and Philadelphia travels to New England and Atlanta is at Denver for night games. The Atlanta-Denver game will be nationally televised.

The weekend's action got under way with Baltimore at Washington, the New York

Giants at Buffalo, St. Louis at Kansas City and Cincinnati vs. Green Bay at Milwaukee Friday night.

Pittsburgh completed its preseason schedule with a 41-15 blitz of Dallas Thursday night and his performance in that one clinched the starting quarterback job for the Steelers' Joe Gilliam.

Gilliam threw two more touchdown passes against the Cowboys and finished the exhibition schedule with 11 in six games to beat out Terry Bradshaw and Terry Hanratty for the starting job. On a pre-season depth chart,

Tigers beat Doniphan

CARUTHERSVILLE — The Caruthersville Tigers put on a show for the hometown fans tonight by feasting on the Doniphan Dons. Midway through the first quarter Doniphan fumbled and the Tigers recovered. Caruthersville marched to the seven where tailback Wade Malone scored on a quick opener up the middle. With four minutes to play in the first quarter the Don's again fumbled and the Tigers recovered on the Don's 30.

Midway through the fourth quarter Doniphan tried a sweep midway down the field and fumbled. The Tigers outside linebacker Robert Mitchell picked up the fumble and ran it in for a 50 yard score. Bobby Taylor again converted the extra point. Doniphan completed numerous short passes and runs in a substituted drive that ended when they scored on a quarterback keeper around right end.

Gilliam was listed third behind the other two.

That's why the exhibition season is so important to NFL teams. That is the time decisions like the one on Gilliam are made and the coaches will be getting their last chance to make those choices this weekend.

The Jets will get a look at new center Wayne Mulligan against Oakland. Mulligan replaces veteran John Schmitt, traded to Oakland this week. New York expects running back John Riggins back after he missed last

Lou steals two, 101

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Bot Forsch pitched a four-hitter and base-stealing star Lou Brock swiped his 100th and 101st bases of the season, leading the St. Louis Cardinals to a 3-0 victory over the New York Mets Friday night.

The triumph was the fifth in a row for the Cards, who remained 1½ games behind the front-running Pittsburgh Pirates in the National League East.

Brock led off the eighth inning with a single against Mets reliever Harry Parker. On the next two pitches he stole second and third, beating the throw from catcher

Duffy Dyer each time. Two outs later, he scored on a single by Joe Torre.

The steals, in the Cards' 138th game of the year, moved Brock within three of the major league record of 104 stolen bases in one season set by Maury Wills in 1962.

Consecutive singles by Torre, Ted Simmons and McBride in the fourth inning gave the Cards another run against New York's Jerry Koosman, 13-9.

One inning later, Mike Tyson led off with a single and moved to second on a sacrifice by Forsch before Brock tripled.

Poplar Bluff loses to Fox

POPLAR BLUFF — Fox of Arnold invaded the Mules camp here Friday night and ran away with a 15-6 win.

Fox was big and tough and handled the Poplar Bluff offense with relative ease through the game.

After a defensive battle in the opening quarter Fox caught the Mules' quarterback John Casey in the endzone for a safety and led 2-0 before Fox's quarterback Don Faucett hit end Pullium in the endzone for 14 yards to Fox a 9-0 lead at the half.

Poplar Bluff was unable to penetrate the Fox defense in the third period and Fox added another touchdown with the same combination as before as Faucett hit Pullium for 28 yards to give Fox the 15-0 lead.

Mike Moss finally broke loose in the fourth period for an 11 yard run for the Mule's only touchdown of the night. The extra point was missed.

1975 programs have no set-aside requirements

Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz recently said that the 1975 feed grain, wheat and upland cotton programs will have no set-aside requirement and will provide farmers decision-making freedom to produce for the market place. He stressed no land will be removed from agricultural production under these government programs.

As the department stated when announcing the 1974 programs, there will be no payments under the target conserving base requirement for the duration of the Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973 (through the 1977 crop year).

Nor will the provision be implemented during the life of the 1973 act which gives the Secretary of Agriculture discretionary authority to limit the percentage of allotments to upland cotton planted in excess of the base allotment.

The secretary pointed out that the allotments under programs authorized under the 1973 farm bill do not represent a limit on acreage, but are computed only for the purpose of payments to producers should such payments be required.

Generally, the allotments for wheat and feed grains represent the number of acres harvested of wheat, corn, grain sorghum and barley, based on the estimated national average yield which would result in production equal to estimated domestic and export marketing year. Also, as in 1974, the producers may substitute any non-conserving crop or any conserving crop used for hay or for grazing in order to preserve their wheat, feed grain or cotton allotments and to make them eligible for programs, there will be no payments under the target conserving base requirement for the duration of the Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973 (through the 1977 crop year).

Because of the market-oriented nature of these programs, producers will be studying prices rather than the 1973 act which gives the Secretary of Agriculture the price incentive should result in full plantings and with normal weather conditions should enable the U.S. to not only fulfill domestic and export requirements but to build up much needed stocks as well, he said.

Butz said the recent announcement will provide farmers with the information they need to make their 1975 crop planting decisions. Additional program provisions will be announced after the department has had an opportunity to make a better determination of 1974 production, he said.

Charlais bull

Charolais bulls are aggressive, fertile, and sire the type of animal that is desired by feeders and packers throughout the country. Charolais sired calves attain greater weaning weights, gain faster in the feedlots with less feed, and reach slaughter sooner than straight-bred calves of other breeds. Charolais bulls have that one important advantage, they produce today's kind of market beef animal. Charolais bulls can be seen at many fairs throughout Missouri.

Sorghum midge do much damage

By THOMAS A. BROWN JR., Area Agronomy Specialist

BLOOMFIELD — Grain sorghum producers should continue to watch sorghum fields for insect problems. Sorghum midge may do extensive damage to late-planted fields, and the corn earworm and sorghum webworm could also cause problems in sorghum fields.

Many grain sorghum fields are completely headed out now and can be considered safe as far as the midge is concerned. In spite of the fact that these fields have apparently escaped midge damage, late-planted fields that are beginning to head out could be heavily damaged and should be watched very closely for this tiny, orange-bodied, gnat-like insect.

Fields should be sprayed when one or more adult midges per head can be found. Two applications may be needed unless the field is very uniform in head emergence. Insecticides recommended for midge control include ethyl parathion, ethion, trithion or diazinon.

Corn earworm can be expected to infest sorghum fields as corn matures and earworms move to other crops. Small earworms may hollow out sorghum grain, and large worms will eat entire grains. An average of one worm per head may cause up to six per cent loss, while an average of two worms per head may cause nine to 10 per cent grain loss.

Controls should be applied when there is an average of one-half to one half-grown or smaller worms per head, depending upon expected yield potential. Use the lower rate of infestation for fields that are expected to yield above 4,500 pounds of grain or more per acre and the higher rate for fields that are expected to yield less than 4,000 pounds per acre.

Insecticides recommended for earworm control include toxaphene, carbaryl (Sevin) or mevinphos (Phosdrin). Tight-headed varieties of sorghum are more likely to be infested with earworms than loose-headed varieties.

Sorghum webworms are usually most severe on late-planted sorghum. These worms eat the kernels of ripening grain, often destroying all of the grain in the head. Severe infestations may almost completely destroy a crop if not controlled.

Webworms are sluggish caterpillars that are somewhat flattened and thickly clothed with hairs. They are about one-half inch in length when full grown. The body is greenish-tan with four reddish-brown stripes down the back.

To determine whether or not a field should be sprayed, determine the average number of worms per head and the average distance between sorghum heads in inches. At average distances between heads of four, six, eight, 12 and 16 inches, spray when two, three, four, six and eight worms respectively are found.

Insecticides recommended for corn earworm control are also recommended for webworm control.

Additional information pertaining to insect control in grain sorghum may be obtained upon request at your county University of Missouri Extension Center.

Steps should be taken now to prevent wheat diseases

BLOOMFIELD — Farmers should take steps now to prevent infestations of diseases

which plagued last season's wheat crop in the next wheat crop.

As is generally known, the wheat crop last season was affected by one of the heaviest disease infestations experienced during recent years. A number of diseases were involved, including glume blotch, barley yellow dwarf, septoria leaf blotch, rhizoctonia blight and perhaps others.

Most of these diseases live over from one season to the next on crop residues, and some are carried on the seed. Consequently, they can be expected to be a problem for the next crop unless steps are taken to control them.

It is therefore very important that farmers use practices that will control these diseases as much as possible.

Some very important practices that can be carried out yet to help in this respect are as follows:

1. Use clean seed. Remove all trash and light, shriveled kernels possible.

2. Treat planting seed with a fungicide to eliminate disease organisms from the seed surface and to protect the seed against soil-borne organisms.

Fungicides suggested for this purpose include Carboxin + Thiram (Vitavax 200), Captan + Thiram, Captan, Maneb (Manzate), Maneb + Zinc Ion Coordinate (Dithane M 45 or Manzate 200), Thiram (Arasan), Terrachlor (Terracoat Lt-2) and Terrachlor + Terrazole (Terracoat L20-5 or Terracoat 20-5).

Few if any people in this area are equipped to treat wheat seed with a slurry treatment or dusts to be applied with a treater. Farmers who cannot treat seed in this manner should consider using a "planter box" seed treatment with dusts.

Although the "planter box" treatment may not give as good results as slurry or dust treatments applied by a seed treater, it is certainly better than no treatment as indicated in the following table outlining results of research conducted in Kansas (emergence percentage counted in 2-leaved stage of growth on 2 wheat varieties - 1973):

Check — Parker 64, Shawnee 26, and Average 45. Carboxin + Thiram (37.5% - 37.5%) — Parker 76, Shawnee 35, and Average 55.

Captan — Parker 74, Shawnee 39, and Average 56. 3. Practice crop rotation. Wheat should not be planted in fields which produced wheat last season. If wheat must follow wheat remove, destroy, or bury straw by deep plowing with a moldboard plow.

4. Plant wheat varieties adapted to the area.

Wheat diseases were costly last season. Yields were cut short generally, and some fields were destroyed due to heavy disease infestations. If weather conditions are favorable for diseases next season, they can be expected to be a problem unless steps are taken to control them.

July cheese production down

WASHINGTON (AP) — Production of American-type cheese declined seasonally in July but totaled 185 million pounds, the most for that month on record, says the Agriculture Department.

The department said July production was down 11 per cent from June but was 8 per cent above July 1973. Production of butter also dropped from June, down 15 per cent, but was 16 per cent above a year earlier.

Fall seedings most successful

By JOHN GARRETT

PORTAGEVILLE — Forages may be seeded in Southeast Missouri in the early spring, late summer (Aug. 15 to Sept. 15) or in winter. Seedings made in the fall just prior to periods of cool and moist weather are usually the most successful. Almost all grasses and legumes may be seeded in the late summer or early fall.

Companion crops produce higher yields, less wasted forage and reduced spotty grazing. Select one of the following mixtures for best results in Southeast Missouri:

1. Tall fescue, 15 pounds, and ladino clover, 1.0 pound, per acre.

2. Tall fescue, 15 pounds, or orchardgrass, 8 pounds, and lespedeza, 15 pounds, and ladino clover, one half pound, per acre.

3. Orchardgrass, 8 pounds, and 1.0 pound of ladino clover per acre.

Inoculation No matter how often you grow legumes in a certain area, always inoculate a new seeding. It is cheap insurance to enable the legumes to fix N from the air and make it available to the growing plants.

Seed, seeding rates and mixtures Select quality seed and use recommended varieties. Often seedling failures are blamed on environmental conditions when the real culprit is poor quality seed. Seed may germinate and then die because of lack of vitality. Factors that contribute to vitality are: age of seed; its maturity at harvest; and the conditions under which it was stored.

Use the right amount of seed! Too much seed is as harmful as too little. Methods of seeding forages have generally been poor, and there is a tendency to use high seeding rates to compensate.

However, excessive seeding rates may result in thin stands because of reduced vigor and size of the plants.

Keep seeding mixtures simple. Grasses and legumes that are sown in combination should be similar in palatability, maturity patterns and growing vigor. Because of the great difference among grasses, each mixture should contain only one grass and one or two legumes. Simple seeding mixtures are more manageable, produce higher yields, less wasted forage and reduced spotty grazing.

Seedbed

A firm seedbed is needed because loose soils quickly dry out and forage seedlings die because of moisture stress. Cultipacking before seeding firms the soil below the seed. Rolling after seeding packs the soil around the seed and provides it with good moisture contact. Rolling before and after seeding both help seedlings get a quick vigorous start.

If the land is steep with a serious erosion hazard, a disc or field cultivator will leave much of the vegetation near the surface as a mulch. The mulch may seem to be a nuisance at seeding time but it offers winter protection for the new seedlings as well as erosion control. A companion crop of wheat will also help alleviate erosion problems.

Lime and fertilizer

Test the soil to determine how much lime, phosphate and potash is to be plowed or disced into the soil before seeding. If a wheat drill is used to seed the companion crop and the forages, it is beneficial to use a starter fertilizer in addition to that worked into the soil.

Most research shows that phosphate applied at seeding time and properly placed in bands is the key element in establishment of both legumes and grasses. A small amount of banded nitrogen and potash may also be beneficial at seeding time, but large amounts of phosphate is the critical element.

An example of a starter fertilizer for forages is one that contains 30 pounds of nitrogen plus 60 pounds of phosphate plus 30 pounds of potash.

Management of new seedings

Fall grazing is necessary if a companion crop such as wheat is used when the forage seeding was made. Start grazing when the wheat is about six to 10 inches tall. Fall grazing will not harm the new grass and legume seedlings unless trampled during wet weather. It is also necessary to graze small grains in the spring or remove for hay. Two additional harvests of the new forage can be expected, one in early July and another in August.

If a fall forage seeding is made without a companion crop, do not graze until the following spring.

Rising feed prices are production deterrent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rising feed prices are more than offsetting gains for cattle, hogs, dairy and poultry products and are shaping up as the main deterrent to stepped-up production of those basic food items, figures from the Agriculture Department indicate.

The situation can be summed up simply by comparing feed costs with prices farmers get for livestock and poultry products.

The net result is that the USDA's report last Friday, which showed farm prices generally were up 3 per cent during the month ended Aug. 15, includes some bad news for producers.

For example, the report showed farm prices of cattle, hogs and eggs were up significantly from mid-July. But it said prices of corn and soybeans also gained.

Thus, the report said, the hog-corn ratio as of Aug. 15 was 10.7 compared with 11.9 in July and 21 just a year earlier. That figure is the amount of corn in bushels equal to the market value of 100 pounds of live hog.

Thus, at Aug. 15 prices, a hog would buy only about one-half as much corn as it did a year earlier. There were other indicators expressing similar situations.

—The Aug. 15 egg-feed ratio was 5.6 meaning that was the number of pounds of feed a producer could buy from the sale of one dozen eggs. In July it was 6.1 and on Aug. 15 last year the ratio was 8.3.

—Broiler producers saw their ratio drop to 2.3 pounds of feed that could be bought from selling one pound of live bird, compared with 2.6 in July and 4 a year earlier.

—The turkey-feed ratio was 2.8, compared with 2.9 in July. A year earlier, on Aug. 15, 1973, it was 3.1.

one pound of liveweight turkey sold for enough to buy 4.3 pounds of feed.

—Dairy producers saw the milk-feed ratio drop to 1.1 as of Aug. 15. That indicated the pounds of feed which could be bought from selling one pound of whole milk. A month earlier it was 1.29 and a year earlier 1.27. Two years ago, on Aug. 15, 1972, the ratio was 1.72.

BEETLE BAILEY by Mort Walker

Today in U. S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Saturday, Sept. 7, the 250th day of 1974. There are 115 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1940, German bombers began the World War II raids against London which became known as the "London Blitz."

On this date —

In 1533, England's Queen Elizabeth I was born.

In 1812, the French defeated the Russians in the battle of Borodino southwest of Moscow.

In 1822, Brazil declared independence from Portugal.

In 1825, the French hero of the American revolution, the Marquis de Lafayette, said his last farewells to President John Adams at the White House.

In 1930, work began on the Colorado River on Boulder Dam, now Hoover Dam.

In 1963, the government of South Vietnam's president, Ngo Dinh Diem, had hundreds of students arrested for demonstrations against his rule.

Ten years ago: President Lyndon Johnson opened his election campaign with a Labor Day speech before a crowd of 100,000 in Detroit.

Five years ago: The Republican leader of the Senate, Everett McKinley Dirksen, died at the age of 73.

One year ago: Secretary of the Treasury George Shultz acknowledged that the United States was "burned" in the 1972 wheat deal with the Soviets.

Today's birthdays: Director Elia Kazan is 65. Actor Peter Lawford is 51.

Thought for today: There are bad manners everywhere, but an aristocracy is bad manners organized — novelist Henry James, 1843-1916.

Dealing with New Words

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Bill Withers is back. He's not an oldie but goodie. He wasn't here so long ago. And he was only gone about a year. He's just been checking out his situation and his conscience.

The first single record he ever released became a big hit. "Ain't No Sunshine (when you're gone)" became a gold record and won a 1972 Grammy Award as best rhythm 'n' blues song for Withers, who also wrote it. More hits followed, "Grandma's Hands," "Lean on Me" and "Use Me." Withers traveled steadily, performing, for two years.

Some people take to that kind of happening in their lives without a second thought. Others think a lot about the changes they're going through. Withers is one of the thinkers.

His background is fairly unusual for a recording artist. He's 36 now and he didn't go into music until he was 33. He had been born in Slab Fork, W. Va., youngest of six children. "The coal mining communities have some funny names. It was probably a fork in a vein of coal or something."

Then he spent nine years in the Navy, where a speech therapist cleared up his childhood stutter. "Most of the time spent in the military was very lonely. Everybody has given their daughters instructions to leave military men alone. And you don't have very much money." Then came five years working in a factory. "You meet people there all with the same level of taste. The slick people don't work in factories. They get around that."

Withers hadn't even been listening to music during most of that time. If he went where it was playing in the background, he more or less ignored it. Then, he suddenly began to listen and "I saw that the people who were making music got attention from the ladies. They never seemed to be socially left out. You don't go into an attention-getting situation unless you want attention."

He met Booker T. Jones and negotiated a contract with Sussex Records, where he has remained. At first it was a subsidiary of Buddah; now it has gone independent. LPs are "Just as I Am," "Still Bill," "Live at Carnegie Hall" and "Justments." His newest single is "You."

He usually writes songs, he says, when he is coming up from an emotional setback or nostalgic or feeling lonely.

The kind of person he is, Withers explains, is idealistic, somewhat sentimental, religious. About his late mother, he says, "She never let me down. She wanted me to be a gentleman, a gentleman for real, even when you don't have to be. No matter what I did, she accepted me. She's the last person I'm sure of that about. A lot of times I had friends because I sold records. You have to earn the time people spend with you in this business."

Withers experienced some shocks, disillusionments and disappointments after he became a performer. "I was socially naive coming into this business. New words started coming into my life — like handsome. Show business men and women are much bolder than a bunch of factory workers. It's easy for the man in the street to say he would never do this and that; if he had the opportunity he would probably faint. Let him walk out of a dressing room and have one of the most gorgeous ladies he has ever seen invite him home with her. Put him in a room where everybody is taking dope and he wants to be 'with it.'"

"The hardest thing for a conventionally brought-up male to adjust to is that it is not really the way they told you it was. You're not going to find that innocence they told you to look for and protect."

"You can make life miserable for those around you by giving lectures. You can go the other way and make rationalizations for yourself that the world is just changing and you have to go along with it. I hope it doesn't become necessary for me to make any more rationalizations than I have already made. It doesn't ease anything for me."

"When I was taking time off I was looking for an emotional and moral balance. It was hard for me to find because I was in a marriage that wasn't working. Coming from a basic religious situation, marriages work. You go ahead and make it work. It was a big disappointment to me; I still haven't figured it out. For a while I was protecting my ego. I said it doesn't make any difference and I feel relieved that the problems that were there are not there any more. Neither are the pleasures. I thought, with me not getting married until I was 34, it would last, and it didn't last a year and a half.

"I miss romance. It was very important to me, and it is gone. Probably one of the reasons I got married is that I wanted romance. I'm not tough emotionally."

"The first six months I traveled, I would delay leaving the dressing room so I wouldn't miss any of those pretty ladies that would come around. Now I find myself looking less and less for situations where there are going to be a lot of pretty ladies around. It's not going to be any romance anyway. It's going to be flat out and straight ahead. Now that I've had the attention, I look for time alone again. It is easy for me sometimes to be quiet and just dream."

Withers likes performing and also producing. He will produce part of Gladys Knight's next LP. He manages himself, saying that he doesn't want to be pampered show business per under somebody else's paternalistic direction. He has looked at some movie scripts but didn't like the "steal $1 million worth of dope and live happily with the chicks" plots that were offered. "When you're making fantasies like that, you're making things for people to aspire to. Most of us function off some kind of imagination that came out of some movie or TV."

He's for women using their brains, Withers says, but with a wife he wants to be the leader. He says someday he would like to have a wife to provide for and children to teach how to live in a world always getting more complex.

"I want to live in stability. I want to give back some things to God, who has given so much out to me.

"I don't want to be a performing adolescent until I die. I hope there is another step. Another growth step."

Curtis says Congress is place for economic summit

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Calling President Ford's economic summit now under way in the nation's capital a "mistake," senatorial candidate Thomas Curtis said Friday the Congress is the one that should be having a summit.

"It's Congress that has the (appropriation) power," said the Republican challenger of Democratic incumbent Thomas F. Eagleton at a news conference here. "The President can't spend one dollar more than the Congress authorizes."

But Curtis quickly pointed out that "if Congress is so lacking in leadership, then the President should exercise some leadership," and he expressed hope that the summit may yield some "great benefits."

The former nine-term congressman from St. Louis, who lost to Eagleton in 1968 by only 37,000 votes, laid the blame for the economic situation with high federal spending, which he said was "feeding the flames of inflation."

"We don't need many summits to zero in on what (the problem) is — it's government spending," Curtis said.

At the outset of the meeting with the press, Curtis announced that GOP Lt. Gov. William Phelps and national GOP committee woman Rosemary Ginn of Columbia will serve as co-chairpersons of his senatorial campaign, and Mrs. Ginn immediately attacked Eagleton as "one of the biggest spenders in Washington."

Contending the state's junior senator does not represent the people of Missouri, Mrs. Ginn charged, "He votes one way and then tells the people he feels another."

Curtis again challenged Eagleton to debate the issues prior to the November election, and while claiming to still be hopeful a debate can be arranged, he indicated there probably would be none.

"Maybe he doesn't have the talents to debate," the Republican said of his Democratic opponent. "I took on all comers when I was in the House. Curtis pledged that, if elected, he would continue his record of voting against spending measures, a record established in the waning years of his term in the U.S. House, because "we have to get on top of inflation."

To balance the national budget, Curtis proposed a

SeMo State announces season theatre events

CAPE GIRARDEAU — The Southeast Missouri State University Theatre has announced its 1974-75 season of plays and films.

For the first time this year, each of the four major stage productions will include a Sunday matinee.

Kicking off the theatre season will be a production of "Godspell," a rock musical based on the Gospel of Matthew. Performances will run Oct. 10-13 and 16-19.

Garson Kanin's 1949 comedy about women's liberation and corruption in Washington, "Born Yesterday," will be presented Dec. 5-8 and 12-14.

A new version of "Cyrano de Bergerac," by Anthony Burgess, is scheduled Feb. 20-23 and Feb. 27-March 1.

The University Theatre season will wrap up with a Pulitzer Prize winner, Paul Zindel's "The Effect of Gamma Rays on Man-in-the-Moon Marigolds." The play, which also won the New York Drama Critics Circle Award, will run April 24-27 and May 1-3.

The University Theatre Cinema will feature five films from the 1930s, beginning on Sept. 20 with "The Gold Diggers of 1933." Pearl S. Buck's "The Good Earth" (1937) will be shown on Nov. 1, followed on Jan. 24 by "The Great Ziegfeld" (1936). The season ends with two classics, "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" (1939), on March 7 and John Huston's western, "Stagecoach" (1939), on April 4.

Season coupons are on sale at Rose Theatre in the Language Arts Building from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays, or they may be ordered by mail from the University Theatre Box Office, Rose Theatre, Southeast Missouri State University.

The coupon can be exchanged for a reserved seat ticket for any performance of each play and it entitles the holder to free admission to each of the films.

(AP) — years, the focus of the National concern over American public's chief economic issues could have concern is inward — their devastating effect on President worry today over domestic Ford's popularity with voters, problems overshadows worry a top public opinion expert about international problems said Friday.

Dr. George Gallup Jr., in Gallup surveys since the president of the Gallup poll, 1930s, the pollster said, told a standing-room-only crowd at Wichita State University that the high cost of disillusioned with the political living may soon end Ford's system because of the "mini-era of good feeling." Watergate scandal, Gallup said.

"While President Ford starts his presidency with a strong vote of confidence from his fellow Americans, the nation's current obsession with the economy and high prices could have a devastating effect on his standing with the public," Gallup said.

Every president since Truman has been faced with public unhappiness over the economy, but President Ford is confronted with acute public attention on economic issues, he added.

Inflation, food shortages affecting school lunches

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The American housewife is not alone in her battle against inflation in the kitchen. The nation's schools are facing higher prices, product shortages and hesitant suppliers as they feed more than 25 million schoolchildren.

An Associated Press survey of school districts shows the cost of preparing a meal has increased 10 to 30 per cent. Children now are paying between 30 and 60 cents, 5 to 10 cents more than they did last year.

Price fluctuations also have caused the schools problems in obtaining suppliers for long-term contracts. Bids are being accepted for shorter periods and many contain an escalator clause that allows the supplier to pass along cost increases.

"We buy on the open market now because nobody wants to sell to us under contract because the price fluctuates so," said Charles Murphy, bid clerk for the San Francisco public schools cafeteria purchasing division.

Howard Briggs, director of food service for the Detroit public schools said: "We used to be able to get a bid and have a firm price for the year. That's no longer possible."

Higher costs and shortages have caused minor changes in some menus. Apple sauce has replaced peaches. Ice cream is served on a plate and not in the costly sugar cone.

None of the supervisors surveyed reported a reduction in the number of meals served or a lowering of quality because of inflation.

Meat was a big problem last year for the schools, but the Agriculture Department made large purchases of beef this year and almost all the schools in the current survey said they have encountered no problems in getting meat.

In New York City, where 91 million lunches were served in 1973, Julius Jacobs, director of the city's bureau of school lunches, said there is plenty of meat this year but there will be less ham on the menu because of its cost and low acceptance by the children.

Sixth hearing date set for Wilson

A preliminary hearing for Dennis Wilson of Sikeston has been set for the sixth time on Sept. 16 on charges of stealing over the value of $50 in connection with a June 15, 1973 arrest involving stolen vehicles.

Scott County Prosecuting Attorney James E. Moore III says the delay in the preliminary hearing is due to "plea bargaining." Judge Thomas Brown of Charleston, who will preside over the hearing, Friday said it will be held in the Sikeston City courtroom.

Scott County sheriff's office, highway patrolmen and Sikeston police staged a raid on June 15, 1973 in which Wilson, Larry Wayne Gilbert of Essex and Gary Dean Irvin of Morehouse were arrested at Sikeston Auto Salvage, 1615 W. Malone Ave., owned by Wilson, and accused of being involved in a major stolen car ring.

In September 1973, Irvin was bound over to Circuit Court, after a preliminary hearing before Judge Lloyd Briggs.

Although a date has been set several times, Irvin's trial has yet to take place.

Irvin allegedly was in the process of cutting a car in half when the arresting officers staged the raid.

The case against Gilbert was dismissed in Magistrate Court.

Moore said Friday he could not remember who dismissed the case or why.

A highway patrol expert on automobile serial numbers was sent to Sikeston from Kirkwood, June 16, 1973. All of the automobiles seized during the raid were believed stolen in the St. Louis area, then shipped to Sikeston.

Correction

EAST PRAIRIE — Keith Norman, 17, was arrested about 7:30 p.m. Thursday at his home in the Dogwood community in connection with an Aug. 26 holdup at Brown Smith's Feed Store near here, not Pete Norman, as incorrectly reported in Friday's edition of The Daily Standard.

Two other East Prairie area youths were arrested and charged with first-degree robbery, along with Norman, and a fourth suspect is being sought by the Mississippi County sheriff's department.

Wilson was later granted a change of venue to Scott County after he was bound over to New Madrid County Circuit Court.

The New Madrid County case is still pending in Scott County and according to New Madrid County Prosecuting Attorney Hal E. Hunter Jr., he does not know when a trial date will be set.

Wilson's case in Scott County has been continued several times.

The first time he appeared in court on July 10, 1973, he waived arraignment and a preliminary hearing was set for July 31, 1973.

On July 31, Wilson's attorney made an application for the disqualification of Judge Briggs, and Judge Brown, Mississippi County Magistrate, was appointed to hear the case. A preliminary hearing was then set for Aug. 21, 1973.

On Aug. 21, the case was continued until Aug. 31, and on that date, the case was again postponed until Sept. 10, 1973.

On Sept. 5, 1973, two motions to suppress evidence were heard by Judge Brown.

Capitol pickets seek usury hike

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — About 200 carpenters and real estate representatives picketed the Capitol for about two hours Friday in support of raising or lifting the 8 per cent usury limit.

The 8 per cent interest rate limit has dried up the state's housing market and banks are lending money in other states where they can get a higher interest, the governor was told in a half-hour meeting with representatives of the picketers.

Ford vows to lick inflation by 200th year

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — President Ford pledged Friday night that before America celebrates its 200th birthday on July 4, 1976, his administration will have halted "the tyranny of double-digit inflation ... the cruellest kind of taxation without representation."

Precisely four weeks to the day after he ascended to the presidency, Ford came to Independence Mall to address a dinner commemorating the 200th anniversary of the First Continental Congress.

He used the occasion to set for the first time a timetable for his administration's anti-inflation battle, although he offered no specifics on his battle plan.

HEW conciliatory to schools in North

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is taking a conciliatory approach to Northern school desegregation because of "very strong, bitter opposition" north of the Mason-Dixon Line, Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Caspar Weinberger said Friday.

The threat of federal fund cutoffs, used to whip Southern schools into line, frequently would produce more rather than less desegregation in the North, he said in an interview.

"I think we have to face the fact that we are dealing with a very fierce public opposition to desegregation in many Northern cities," said Weinberger, who declined to name any specific trouble spots.

The bulk of segregated practices occurs in concentrated urban areas of the North where the opposition to busing and various forms of desegregation appears to be far stronger than in the South," he said.

Weinberger conceded that HEW has made greater progress in desegregating Southern schools.

Farmland value up sharply

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — The value of Missouri farmland rose by 29 per cent in a year, an agricultural economist has reported, and this not only set a record but is more than twice as much as in any year in the past decade.

The figures were provided Friday by Paul R. Taylor, farm management specialist at the University of Missouri.

"The average value of an acre of Missouri farmland was $376 in March, Taylor said. "This was $85 above March of 1973."

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

These days there is only one way to go - broke.

I do not know what should be done with the man who cannot get a job, or cannot hold one when he gets it. He has always been a problem, and always will be on the hands of the industrious. But I do not believe we should hang those who find work, and who perform it with reasonable satisfaction.

SETTING UP HOUSEKEEPING

Vivid in the memory of every married couple is the event of "setting up housekeeping" in their first home or apartment. Imagine, however, moving into a home with 150 rooms, 39 bathrooms, several kitchens, a solarium, barbershop, movie theatre, a bomb shelter, and 147 windows to wash.

And, although this isn't their first home, it was truly a major event in the lives of Jerry and Betty Ford to move into the "First" home of our nation — the building which has come to be known as the "White House." For the first time, President Ford does not have a key to his dwelling place — which, now, is not only his home, but office and goldfish bowl as well.

John and Abigail Adams were the first to move into the White House, in 1800, while carpenters and bricklayers were still busy with its construction.
Jefferson, who enjoyed good company, was the first to invite numbers of guests to dinner, a practice which has become firmly rooted in American tradition.
Andrew Jackson, who became President in 1829 and was the first Chief Executive who did not come from an affluent family, established the "log cabin to the White House" legend which has become world-renowned. Only in American could its leaders come from other than aristocracy. Indeed, even then, many were scandalized when former "log cabin" associates and friends of Jackson stayed at the now famous "House" in Washington.

In 1848, President and Mrs. Polk introduced a fabulous new invention called "gas lighting," replacing the hundreds of wax candles used for illumination until that time. President Arthur installed the first elevator, and Benjamin Harrison introduced electric lighting (in 1889), but the Harrisons were so fearful of getting a shock from the newfangled lights that they didn't dare to turn them on or off. To take care of that chore, they kept the electrician on the job — and he stayed for 42 years, as Chief Usher.

With up to 40,000 visitors a week trudging through the rooms and halls, Mrs. Ford will have plenty of "housekeeping" to manage, what with 600,000 square feet of wood floors to mop and shine, 15,000 square feet of carpeting to vacuum and some of our nation's most valuable antiques to dust and polish — to say nothing of those 147 windows.

Fortunately, Betty Ford will have a few helpers to assist her in these chores. As she declared: "I really don't consider it my house; I consider it the house of the people of the United States ... I can't imagine anyone being more delighted than I am."

We wish Betty Ford and her family all of the happiness possible as she moves her home to the "House."

WASHINGTON -- The people who cried "Let's forget about Watergate so we can get on with the business of running the country" are now singing another tune. Roger Petulant, a neighbor, who is furious with the way the press played up Watergate walked over to my driveway the other day and said, "All you guys ever write about now is the sagging economy. Why don't you put the economy behind you so we can get on with the business of running the country?"

I explained to Roger that it wasn't my decision to make the economy the major issue of the month. I was on vacation and some subordinate chose it as the big news story to replace Watergate. "If I had been here," I said, "I would have gone with how much money Nelson Rockefeller has."

"Well," said Petulant,
"people are getting sick and tired of you guys picking on government spending and two-digit inflation all the time.
Good grief, we've always had government spending and inflation. What's the big deal about a sagging economy?"
"It isn't just government spending, Roger," I said. "It's also the stock market which has gone to hell, the bank loan rates that have soared to the skies and the price of food and oil. We can't just close our eyes to these things."

"Why not?" If you ask me, Petulant said, "I think you guys just cooked up the sagging economy to sell newspapers."

"Now, wait a minute, Roger," I said angrily, "I warned you that the day we stopped printing stories about Watergate we'd all be in trouble. Watergate kept this country going for two years.
We had inflation, high grocery prices and automobile cost raises before but no one cared.

CLOSE TO THE

HEARTSIDE

Mrs. Helen Bentley, first woman chairman of the Federal Maritime Commission, explains very simply why every home is dependent upon merchant vessels plying the seas of the world in behalf of American international commerce. An article in "Progressive Woman" quotes her as saying: "Practically every article Americans use in day-to-day living requires imported material ... to produce. Take the aluminum chair on your patio, the electric light you read by, your TV set, radio, or the car in your garage."

Mrs. Bentley then explained

why the U.S. cannot depend on the vessels of foreign nations to carry its trade. The reason is that they are unavailable when needed most.

These facts emphasize the direct concern the nation has with moving rapidly ahead with the government-industry program of new ship

construction provided for under the Merchant Marine Act of 1970 and with measures to make those ships competitive with foreign shipping in securing cargoes. This urgency applies to oil tankers as well as other vessels since they are a growing part of the U.S. energy supply lifeline.

In all phrases of its operation, the U.S. Merchant

Marine is as close to the heartside of every home as it was in the days of the famed clipper ships. Neither catastrophic strikes by longshoremen nor foreign competition should ever be permitted to undermine the U.S. Merchant Marine. It is a key element of domestic well-being and a primary factor in overall U.S. sea power.

her complaint to the owner.

Next time she went to the drug store, the druggist greeted her with a big smile, told her how happy he was to see her again. He said he hoped she liked their town and to please let him know if there was anything he could do to help her and her husband get settled. He then filled her order promptly and efficiently.

Later the woman reported the miraculous change to her friend, "I suppose you told the druggist how poor I thought the service was?" she asked.

"Well, no," the woman said, "In fact — and I hope you don't mind — I told him you were amazed at the way he had built up this small town drug store, and that you thought it was one of the best run drug stores you'd ever seen."

the girl inquired.

"Aw, c'mon, lady," replied the cabdriver, "why don't cha

"Please, Mom," said the girl. "I want to know."

Looking daggers at the back of the driver's head, the

"But what happens to the

"They grow up," the

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:

Castro's Terror

WASHINGTON -- A less

bombastic Fidel Castro is now on his best behavior, as he strives to bring Cuba into the society of Western Hemisphere nations. But hidden from the prominent visitors he has enticed to Cuba is an unspeakable world of political oppression.

We have written about the terror and torture in the prisons of Brazil's right-wing dictatorship. Now we have received evidence of similar tactics in the prisons of Cuba's left-wing dictatorship.

Just as Brazilian political prisoners smuggled their stark stories to us through priests,

Castro's prisoners have managed to smuggle letters, affidavits and other evidence to the U.S. with directions that they be delivered to us.

We have checked out their charges, as best we could, with former prisoners who have been released from Castro's custody. We are willing to make a personal inspection of these prisons, if Castro will permit it, as we also offered to do in Brazil.

The letters and affidavits describe a horror which, for the unhappy souls who run afoul of Castro's political police, usually begins with a frightening, after-midnight arrest.

"You and your family are all fast asleep," states one affidavit, "when the put (you) into a G-2 car."

The victim is hustled to G-2 headquarters where, according to the affidavit, "you are taken into a small room, have all your clothes taken away from you, searched even within your body, then given a pair of mechanic overalls without any sleeves."

The interrogation takes place in a small office. "The officers all put their guns on the table in front of you to scare you," recounts the affidavit. "Then the questioning begins, with insults, the threats, the false accusations, where everybody is accused of being the CIA."

If the prisoner doesn't give the answers they want, he is held alternately in overheated and frigid cells. "The heat is so bad, you faint. And then you are brought in a special cell that has air conditioning so cold you freeze. All this to Bridge faces delay

DEXTER -- Work is currently under way on the construction of a bridge that will help to tie the Dexter industrial area into the downtown area. But it will take court proceedings before the project can be finally completed, city officials said Thursday.

The bridge is being built at the intersection of Cooper Street, Arvin Road and Highway 114 in west Dexter. Hessling Brothers Construction Co. is the contractor for the bridge construction. The street project is under contract to Keener Gravel Co.

The road reaching from the downtown area to the industrial area will not be completed until court action is completed on a condemnation suit against Calvary Baptist Church. The city is seeking the property for the street by condemnation, and the proceedings have been filed in Circuit Court.

Hessling Brothers will also build a second bridge at the intersection with Two Mile Road, thus completing the "loop" of the street through the downtown area, giving the industrial area two entrances and exits. Traffic in the area is rapidly increasing as industrial expansion continues.

Work is progressing satisfactorily on the new bridge which should be completed in a week or so, city officials said. Work will then begin on the second bridge at Two Mile Road, officials said.

The completion of the street at the Highway 114 intersection will permit traffic to move easily from the industrial area into the business area of the town and will also help to ease the traffic congestion in that part of the city, it was pointed out.

Engineering work on the project is being done by C. R. Trotter and Associates, with engineer Terry Howes in charge.

SeMo Shrine Club seeks 50 members

SeMo Shrine Club has begun a membership drive to enroll at least 50 new members from the ranks of the Scottish and York Rite Masons in this area, it was announced today by Laddie Latham of Matthews, president.

All Shriners must be Masons and members of the Scottish or York rites. The SeMo Shrine Club has a membership of 130.

The club, which is a branch of Moolah Shrine Temple in St. Louis, must have applications for new candidates for the fall ceremonial turned in by Sept. 15.

The fall ceremonial will be in Cape Girardeau on Sept. 28.

Latham asks all interested and qualified applicants in this area to phone him at 471-3792 if they do not have a friend who is a Shriner. "I'll be happy to give their application personal attention," he said.

He said calls to other officers of the club, L. E. Webb of Sikeston, 471-1503, Henry Bussey of Sikeston, 471-2287, or any club member will help prospective new members obtain applications.

Latham said he hopes 400 new members will be added in the eastern half of Missouri to the 10,500 who are already members of Moolah Temple.

Clubs that will participate in the Sept. 28 parade at Cape Girardeau will be SeMo Shrine Club, based in Sikeston; Three Rivers Shrine Club of Poplar Bluff; ECMO Shrine Club of Farmington; and Cape Shrine Club of Cape Girardeau.

Latham said Moolah Potentate Arthur C. Haack is conducting an intensive campaign throughout eastern Missouri to build Moolah membership.

The primary reason Haack gives for the membership drive is to make possible the continuation of Shrine health services, the 22 free Shrine hospitals for crippled children and the burns institutes which annually spend about $30 million aiding more than 10,000 children.

"We have a job to do in supporting our hospitals and burns units, particularly in these highly inflationary times," Latham said. Costs are rising all the time and we need the help of as many good men as possible to keep the world's greatest charity in motion.

He said there are 114,000 masons in Missouri. "Surely, there are many thousands who would join if they were asked. Well, we're asking them now."

Ann Landers

Special poem 'beautiful'

Dear Ann Landers: I am a woman 45 years of age and considered good looking. I've always had trouble with my teeth and confess I haven't taken care of them properly. Now the dentist tells me I must have a complete extraction, which means every tooth in my head has got to come out. According to him I have a bad infection of the gums which could ruin my whole system. He says it's the best way, because the few teeth that I would have left after pulling the bad ones would make bridgework impossible.

I dread the thought of dentures. I'm sure I will look old and I hate the idea. Also, I was recently divorced and I'm afraid a woman with dentures would have a harder time getting married.

A friend of mine who had dentures made last year claims it ruined her romance because she was afraid to kiss the man she was going with, and he finally dropped her. Please advise. -- Yea Or Nay?

Dear Y.: If you don't believe your dentist, get another opinion. As for "looking old" and having your sex life damaged, I'm sure plenty of people with dentures have better sex lives than they had when they were walking around with teeth that should have been extracted.

Dear Ann Landers: Will you print this beautiful poem for parents who have a very "special child"? It struck me as the most moving and supportive thing I had ever read. I'm sure it will mean a great deal to those who have "special" children. Thank you, in advance. -- Your friend, Essee Kucpinet.

Dear Essee: I agree. The poem is beautiful. Here it is. Thanks for sending it on.

HEAVEN'S VERY SPECIAL CHILD

A meeting was held quite far from Earth. "It's time again for another birth," Said the angels to the Lord above. "This special child will need much love. His progress may seem very slow. Accomplishments he may not show And he'll require extra care From the folks he meets way down there. He may not run or laugh or play; His thoughts may seem quite far away. In many ways he won't adapt. And he'll be known as handicapped. So let's be careful where he's sent. We want his life to be content. Please, Lord, find parents who Will do a special job for you. They will not realize right away The leading role they're asked to play But with this child sent from above Comes stronger faith and richer love. And soon they'll know the privilege given In caring for this gift from Heaven. Their precious charge, so meek and mild Is Heaven's very special child." Author Unknown

Even if drinking is the "in" thing in your crowd, it needn't crowd you out. Learn the facts from Ann Landers' booklet, "Booze and You -- For Teen-Agers Only." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 3346, Chicago, Illinois 60654.

Rowe is a 1970 graduate of Blytheville High School and served two years in the Navy. He is employed by S. J. Cohen Construction Co. in Dexter.

A Sept. 28 wedding is planned at First Christian Church.

WHAT IS MOST IMPORTANT WHEN SELECTING A HEARING AID?
By
The most important consideration when selecting a hearing aid... is your selection of a hearing aid center.
Hearing aids are not like a transistor radio. You just don't buy one and use it. They are individual. There are many different makes, shapes and sizes. A model that would be perfect for one person could fail for another.
Our hearing aid center can find the correct hearing aid for you. It is important, therefore, that you take your hearing problem to the expert: A specialist who is experienced in testing hearing difficulties.
Have you seen the Clarifier "hearing glasses"? They are specially fitted, effective, attractive and popular. See ours today.

The Sikeston Bulldogs opened their 1974 football campaign on a sad note as the Farmington Knights handed the gallant Dogs a 7-6 defeat, handing coach Terry Smith's team their fifth straight setback going back to the 1973 season.

Penalties spelled defeat for Sikeston as three mistakes at crucial times in the game either helped the Knights score or kept the Bulldogs off the scoreboard.

Sikeston's defense picked up where the 1973 team left off as the Farmington team outweighed the Bulldogs defense an average of 20 pounds per man but Sikeston held the big Knights to 155 yards rushing while the Bulldogs rushed for 218 yards.

The first half was a completely defensive game particularly throughout the first quarter as neither offense could penetrate the opponent's defense.

Sikeston's defense shined in the first period as Farmington kicked off and held the Bulldogs to a standstill, and the game was played deep in Bulldog territory.

In the second period Sikeston began to roll offensively as the Bulldog defense held Farmington deep in side their own territory. Quarterback Tom Luber burst up the middle for 45 yards and a personal foul penalty helped the Bulldogs down to the 15 yard line where the first penalty for Sikeston actually cost them the football game. Tom DeRoush broke through the middle of the line for the 15 yards into the endzone but a holding penalty nullified the touchdown and moved the Bulldogs back to the Farmington 30 yard line where Sikeston was unable to come back down field. The half ended in a scoreless tie.

Farmington came out in the third period and began to use the weight advantage of the backs to break through the line. Harry Hull did the bulk of the running but a 31 yard gallop by quarterback Jim McKinney carried the ball to the Sikeston 28 where safety David Shell made a temporary touchdown saving tackle from behind.

Only seconds later the second crucial penalty helped the Knights to the first touchdown of the game and a 7-0 lead. The quarterback carried the ball to the 21 yard line where a face mask foul was called against Sikeston to allow Farmington to start from the Bulldog six yard line where Hull scored two plays later from the four.

Sikeston made an attempt to march downfield but the inability to complete passes caused the offense to bog down at the end of the third quarter.

Sikeston punted into the Farmington endzone and the Knights started their offense from the 20 yard line but a courageous defense led by John Ralph stood strong against the heavy Farmington offensive line and Sikeston took over on their own 21 yard line after a punt.

Ron Friday took over at quarterback from Tom Luber and marched Sikeston downfield toward the Farmington goal line. Larry Blue, who had been held in check by the Knight Line throughout the first half and third period burst up the middle for 30 yards to the Farmington 49 yard line. Blue came right back for another long gainer to the 24 yard line with six minutes left in the game and trailing 7-0.

Mike Lambert plunged off tackle for eight yards to the 19 and with third down and one yard to go for a first down Tom DeRoush once again burst up the middle for the final yardage and a touchdown to make the score 7-6.

The Bulldogs made their third and final mistake which ended up costing them at least a tie as a delay in game penalty moved the ball back five yards for the extra point try which was missed on a pass attempt in the endzone by Ron Friday.

Coach Smith seems to have a fine defensive unit to complete with but must do some work on the offense as the weeks roll by or else Sikeston's opponents will wear the defense down as each game rolls along into the second half.

Farmington made mistakes in the game also but Sikeston outplayed the Knights throughout the entire game but the penalties told the final story.

Sikeston was led in rushing by Tom DeRoush. Larry Blue opened up a little in the fourth quarter. Tom Luber ran the keeper very well breaking loose for a couple of long gainers before being replaced by Ron Friday at quarterback.

The Bulldogs outgained Farmington 89 yards to 80 in the first half but Farmington ran the most plays, 28 to the Bulldogs 19.

Eagles fly high

STEELE — The Eagles of East Prairie are flying high tonight. East Prairie traveled to South Pemiscot and came home victors in the opening football game for both school's by a score of 27 to 12.

Alan McKay passed from the Eagles 35 to left end Alan Becker who waltzed in from the ten. The Bulldogs missed both extra points. Final score: East Prairie 27, South Pemiscot 12.

The turning point of the ball game may have occurred in the first two minutes of the ballgame. The Bulldog's of South Pemiscot received the opening kickoff. East Prairie blocked their first punt and recovered the ball in the Bulldog's end zone for a touchdown. Midway through the first quarter The Eagles scored on a half back option around left end from fifty yards out. East Prairie scored both of their extra points and the half-time score was 14-0 Eagles.

Early in the third quarter South Pemiscot fumbled a punt return on their own 25. Several plays later East Prairie's Bankhead scored on a twenty yard run off left tackle. The teams battled evenly throughout the remaining quarter.

About 1 minute into the fourth quarter East Prairie got the ball and marched on the ground to the Bulldog's 6. Bankhead again scored around rt. end on a 6 yrd. run. About four minutes into the fourth quarter South Pemiscot's left halfback James Cooper scored on a 25 yard sweep around right end. At about the four minute mark the Bulldog's began marching up the field on short passes. Quarterback

Dress rehearsals end this weekend for the National Football League with all teams completing their exhibition schedules and a fistful of personnel decisions due to be made.

The Player's Association strike left most training camps bloated with free agents and rookies and some team rosters are still top heavy. They won't be by next Tuesday when the clubs must trim to 47 players. That means plenty of jobs will be on the line this weekend.

Four night games highlight Saturday's schedule with Cleveland at Detroit, San Diego at Minnesota, New Orleans at Houston and Miami at Chicago. The New York Jets play an afternoon game against Oakland at Berkeley.

On Sunday, Los Angeles will be at San Francisco for a day game and Philadelphia travels to New England and Atlanta is at Denver for night games. The Atlanta-Denver game will be nationally televised.

The weekend's action got under way with Baltimore at Washington, the New York

Giants at Buffalo, St. Louis at Kansas City and Cincinnati vs. Green Bay at Milwaukee Friday night.

Pittsburgh completed its preseason schedule with a 41-15 blitz of Dallas Thursday night and his performance in that one clinched the starting quarterback job for the Steelers' Joe Gilliam.

Gilliam threw two more touchdown passes against the Cowboys and finished the exhibition schedule with 11 in six games to beat out Terry Brandshaw and Terry Hanratty for the starting job. On a pre-season depth chart,

Gilliam was listed third behind the other two.

That's why the exhibition season is so important to NFL teams. That is the time decisions like the one on Gilliam are made and the coaches will be getting their last chance to make those choices this weekend.

The Jets will get a look at new center Wayne Mulligan against Oakland. Mulligan replaces veteran John Schmitt, traded to Oakland this week. New York expects running back John Riggins back after he missed last

Lou steals two, 101

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Bob Forsch pitched a four-hitter and base-stealing star Lou Brock swiped his 100th and 101st bases of the season, leading the St. Louis Cardinals to a 3-0 victory over the New York Mets Friday night.

The triumph was the fifth in a row for the Cards, who remained 1½ games behind the front-running Pittsburgh Pirates in the National League East.

Brock led off the eighth inning with a single against Mets reliever Harry Parker. On the next two pitches he stole second and third, beating the throw from catcher

Duffy Dyer each time. Two outs later, he scored on a single by Joe Torre.

The steals, in the Cards' 138th game of the year, moved Brock within three of the major league record of 104 stolen bases in one season set by Maury Wills in 1962.

Consecutive singles by Torre, Ted Simmons and McBride in the fourth inning gave the Cards another run against New York's Jerry Koosman, 13-9.

One inning later, Mike Tyson led off with a single and moved to second on a sacrifice by Forsch before Brock tripled.

Poplar Bluff loses to Fox

POPLAR BLUFF — Fox of Arnold invaded the Mules camp here Friday night and ran away with a 15-6 win.

Fox was big and tough and handled the Poplar Bluff offense with relative ease through the game.

After a defensive battle in the opening quarter Fox caught the Mules' quarterback John Casey in the endzone for a safety and led 2-0 before Fox's quarterback Don Faucett hit end Pullium in the endzone for 14 yards to Fox a 9-0 lead at the half.

Poplar Bluff was unable to penetrate the Fox defense in the third period and Fox added another touchdown with the same combination as before as Faucett hit Pullium for 28 yards to give Fox the 15-0 lead.

Mike Moss finally broke loose in the fourth period for an 11 yard run for the Mule's only touchdown of the night. The extra point was missed.

1975 programs have no set-aside requirements

Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz recently said that the 1975 feed grain, wheat and upland cotton programs will have no set-aside requirement and will provide farmers decision-making freedom to produce for the market place. He stressed no land will be removed from agricultural production under these government programs.

As the department stated when announcing the 1974 programs, there will be no conserving base requirement for the duration of the Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973 (through the 1977 crop year).

Nor will the provision be implemented during the life of the 1973 act which gives the Secretary of Agriculture discretionary authority to limit feed grain and wheat to a percentage of allotments and upland cotton planted in excess of the base allotment.

The secretary pointed out that the allotments under programs authorized under the 1973 farm bill do not represent a limit on acreage, but are computed only for the purpose of payments to producers. Additional program provisions should such payments be required.

Generally, the allotments for wheat, corn, grain production, he said.

sorghum and barley, based on the estimated national average yield which would result in production equal to estimated domestic and export disappearance in the 1975-76 marketing year. Also, as in 1974, the producers may substitute any non-conserving crop or any conserving crop used for hay or for grazing in order to preserve their wheat, feed grain or cotton allotments and to make them eligible for any payments under the target price feature. Crops for which a marketing quota is in effect are excluded.

Because of the market-oriented nature of these programs, producers will be studying prices rather than allotment acreages, Butz said. The price incentive should result in full plantings and with normal weather conditions should enable the U.S. to not only fulfill domestic export requirements but to build up much needed stocks as well, he said.

Butz said the recent announcement will provide farmers with the information they need to make their 1975 crop planting decisions.

Additional program provisions will be announced after the department has had an opportunity to make a better determination of 1974

Charlais bull

Charolais bulls are aggressive, fertile, and sire the type of animal that is desired by feeders and packers throughout the country. Charolais sired calves attain greater weaning weights, gain faster in the feedlots with less feed, and reach slaughter sooner than straight-bred calves of other breeds. Charolais bulls have that one important advantage, they produce today's kind of market beef animal. Charolais bulls can be seen at many fairs throughout Missouri.

Sorghum midge do much damage

By THOMAS A. BROWN JR.

Area Agronomy Specialist
BLOOMFIELD — Grain sorghum producers should continue to watch sorghum fields for insect problems. Sorghum midge may do extensive damage to late-planted fields, and the corn earworm and sorghum webworm could also cause problems in sorghum fields.

Many grain sorghum fields are completely headed out now and can be considered safe as far as the midge is concerned. In spite of the fact that these fields have apparently escaped midge damage, late-planted fields that are beginning to head out could be heavily damaged and should be watched very closely for this tiny, orange-bodied, gnat-like insect.

Fields should be sprayed when one or more adult midges per head can be found. Two applications may be needed unless the field is very uniform in head emergence. Insecticides recommended for midge control include ethyl parathion, ethion, trithion or diazinon.

Corn earworm can be expected to infest sorghum fields as corn matures and earworms move to other crops. Small earworms may hollow out sorghum grain, and large worms will eat entire grains. An average of one worm per head may cause up to six per cent loss, while an average of two worms per head may cause nine to 10 per cent grain loss. Controls should be applied when there is an average of one-half to one half-grown or smaller worms per head, depending upon expected yield potential. Use the lower rate of infestation for fields that are expected to yield above 4,500 pounds of grain or more per acre and the higher rate for fields that are expected to yield less than 4,000 pounds per acre.

Insecticides recommended for earworm control include toxaphene, carbaryl (Sevin) or mevinphos (Phosdrin). Tight-headed varieties of sorghum are more likely to be infested with earworms than loose-headed varieties.

Sorghum webworms are usually most severe on late-planted sorghum. These worms eat the kernels of ripening grain, often destroying all of the grain in the head. Severe infestations may almost completely destroy a crop if not controlled.

Webworms are sluggish caterpillars that are somewhat flattened and thickly clothed with hairs. They are about one-half inch in length when full grown. The body is greenish-tan with four reddish-brown stripes down the back.

To determine whether or not a field should be sprayed, determine the average number of worms per head and the average distance between sorghum heads in inches. At average distances between heads of four, six, eight, 12 and 16 inches, spray when two, three, four, six and eight worms respectively are found.

Insecticides recommended for corn earworm control are also recommended for webworm control.

Additional information pertaining to insect control in grain sorghum may be obtained upon request at your county University of Missouri Extension Center.

Steps should be taken now to prevent wheat diseases

which plagued last season's wheat crop in the next wheat crop.

As is generally known, the wheat crop last season was affected by one of the heaviest disease infestations experienced during recent years. A number of diseases were involved, including glume blotch, barley yellow dwarf, septoria leaf blotch, rhizoctonia blight and perhaps others.

Most of these diseases live over from one season to the next on crop residues, and some are carried on the seed. Consequently, they can be expected to be a problem for the next crop unless steps are taken to control them.

It is therefore very important that farmers use practices that will control these diseases as much as possible.

Some very important practices that can be carried out yet to help in this respect are as follows:

1. Use clean seed. Remove all trash and light, shriveled kernels possible.
2. Treat planting seed with a fungicide to eliminate disease organisms from the seed surface and to protect the seed against soil-borne organisms.

Fungicides suggested for this purpose include Carboxin + Thiram (Vitavax 200), Captan + Thiram, Captan, Maneb (Manzate), Maneb + Zinc Ion Coordinate (Dithane M 45 or Manzate 200), Thiram (Arasan), Terrachlor (Terracoat Lt-2) and Terrachlor + Terrazole (Terracoat L20-5 or Terracoat 20-5).

Few if any people in this area are equipped to treat wheat seed with a slurry treatment or dusts to be applied with a treater. Farmers who cannot treat seed in this manner should consider using a "planter box" seed treatment with dusts.

USE THE DAILY STANDARD CLASSIFIED ADS

Although the "planter box" treatment may not give as good results as slurry or dust treatments applied by a seed treater, it is certainly better than no treatment as indicated in the following table outlining results of research conducted in Kansas (emergence percentage counted in 2-leaved stage of growth on 2 wheat varieties - 1973):

Check — Parker 64, Shawnee 26, and Average 45. Carboxin + Thiram (37.5% - 37.5%) — Parker 76, Shawnee 35, and Average 55.

Captan — Parker 74, Shawnee 39, and Average 56. 3. Practice crop rotation. Wheat should not be planted in fields which produced wheat last season. If wheat must follow wheat remove, destroy, or bury straw by deep plowing with a moldboard plow.

4. Plant wheat varieties adapted to the area.

Wheat diseases were costly last season. Yields were cut short generally, and some fields were destroyed due to heavy disease infestations. If weather conditions are favorable for diseases next season, they can be expected to be a problem unless steps are taken to control them.

July cheese production down

WASHINGTON (AP) — Production of American-type cheese declined seasonally in July but totaled 165 million pounds, the most for that month on record, says the Agriculture Department.

The department said July production was down 11 per cent from June but was 8 per cent above July 1973. Production of butter also dropped from June, down 15 per cent, but was 16 per cent above a year earlier.

Fall seedings most successful

By JOHN GARRETT
Area Agronomy Specialist
PORTAGEVILLE —

Forages may be seeded in Southeast Missouri in the early spring, late summer (Aug. 15 to Sept. 15) or in winter. Seedings made in the fall just prior to periods of cool and moist weather are usually the most successful. Almost all grasses and legumes may be seeded in the late summer or early fall.

Companion crops Studies show that cover crops such as wheat or oats reduce weeds, control erosion and furnish winter protection to young seedlings. It is also true that companion crops that are harvested for grain may suppress and kill young forage seedlings. But if they are removed early as hay or pasture, they do not interfere with seedling establishment.

Small grains are excellent forages and often yield as much as two or three tons of hay equivalent. This may substantially offset much of the seeding costs. If you are planning a late summer seeding, consider a Hessian fly resistant wheat variety as a companion crop. It will furnish fall pasture and winter protection to the young seedlings and prevent erosion.

Seed, seeding rates and mixtures Select quality seed and use recommended varieties. Often seedling failures are blamed on environmental conditions when the real culprit is poor quality seed. Seed may germinate and then die because of lack of vitality. Factors that contribute to vitality are: age of seed; its maturity at harvest; and the conditions under which it was stored. Use certified seed, if available. Poor seed is never a bargain at any price.

Use the right amount of seed! Too much seed is as harmful as too little. Methods of seeding forages have generally been poor, and there is a tendency to use high seeding rates to compensate.

However, excessive seeding rates may result in thin stands because of reduced vigor and size of the plants.

Keep seeding mixtures simple. Grasses and legumes that are sown in combination should be similar in palatability, maturity patterns and growing vigor. Because of the great difference among grasses, each mixture should contain only one grass and one or two legumes. Simple seeding mixtures are more manageable, produce higher yields, less wasted forage and reduced spotty grazing.

Select one of the following mixtures for best results in Southeast Missouri:

1. Tall fescue, 15 pounds, and ladino clover, 1.0 pound, per acre.
2. Tall fescue, 15 pounds, or orchardgrass, 8 pounds, and lespedeza, 15 pounds, and ladino clover, one half pound, per acre.
3. Orchardgrass, 8 pounds, and 1.0 pound of ladino clover per acre.

Inoculation No matter how often you grow legumes in a certain area, always inoculate a new seeding. It is cheap insurance to enable the legumes to fix N from the air and make it available to the growing plants.

Many seed companies sell preinoculated seed. These are effective if the seed is stored in cool areas and it is sown three or four months following treatment. If there is any doubt or the seed is carried over from the past year, re-inoculate before sowing.

Seedbed A firm seedbed is needed because loose soils quickly dry out and forage seedlings die because of moisture stress. Cultipacking before seeding firms the soil below the seed. Rolling after seeding packs the soil around the seed and provides it with good moisture contact. Rolling before and after seeding both help seedlings get a quick vigorous start.

If the land is steep with a serious erosion hazard, a disc or field cultivator will leave much of the vegetation near the surface as a mulch. The mulch may seem to be a nuisance at seeding time but it offers winter protection for the new seedlings as well as erosion control. A companion crop of wheat will also help alleviate erosion problems.

Lime and fertilizer Test the soil to determine how much lime, phosphate and potash is to be plowed or disced into the soil before seeding. If a wheat drill is used to seed the companion crop and the forages, it is beneficial to use a starter fertilizer in addition to that worked into the soil.

Most research shows that phosphate applied at seeding time and properly placed in bands is the key element in establishment of both legumes and grasses. A small amount of banded nitrogen and potash may also be beneficial at seeding time, but large amounts of phosphate is the critical element.

An example of a starter fertilizer for forages is one that contains 30 pounds of nitrogen plus 60 pounds of phosphate plus 30 pounds of potash.

Management of new seedings Fall grazing is necessary if a companion crop such as wheat is used when the forage seeding was made. Start grazing when the wheat is about six to 10 inches tall. Fall grazing will not harm the new grass and legume seedlings unless trampled during wet weather. It is also necessary to graze small grains in the spring or remove for hay. Two additional harvests of the new forage can be expected, one in early July and another in August.

If a fall forage seeding is made without a companion crop, do not graze until the following spring.

Rising feed prices are production deterrent

WASHINGTON (AP) —

Rising feed prices are more than offsetting gains for cattle, hogs, dairy and poultry products and are shaping up as the main deterrent to stepped-up production of those basic food items, figures from the Agriculture Department indicate.

The situation can be summed up simply by comparing feed costs with prices farmers get for livestock and poultry products.

The net result is that the USDA's report last Friday, which showed farm prices generally were up 3 per cent during the month ended Aug. 15, includes some bad news for producers.

For example, the report showed farm prices of cattle, hogs and eggs were up significantly from mid-July. But it said prices of corn and soybeans also gained.

Thus, the report said, the hog-corn ratio as of Aug. 15 was 10.7 compared with 11.9 in July and 21 just a year earlier. That figure is the amount of corn in bushels equal to the market value of 100 pounds of live hog.

Thus, at Aug. 15 prices, a hog would buy only about one-half as much corn as it did a year earlier. There were other indicators expressing similar situations:

—The Aug. 15 egg-feed ratio was 5.6 meaning that was the number of pounds of feed a producer could buy from the sale of one dozen eggs. In July it was 6.1 and on Aug. 15 last year the ratio was 8.3.

—Broiler producers saw their ratio drop to 2.3 pounds of feed that could be bought from selling one pound of live bird, compared with 2.6 in July and 4 a year earlier.

—The turkey-feed ratio was 2.8, compared with 2.9 in July. A year earlier, on Aug. 15, 1973, it was 3.3.

one pound of live-weight turkey sold for enough to buy 4.3 pounds of feed.

—Dairy producers saw the milk-feed ratio drop to 1.1 as of Aug. 15. That indicated the pounds of feed which could be bought from selling one pound of whole milk. A month earlier it was 1.29 and a year earlier 1.27. Two years ago, on Aug. 15, 1972, the ratio was 1.72.

Dealing with New Words

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Bill Withers is back. He's not an oldie but goodie. He wasn't here so long ago. And he was only gone about a year. He's just been checking out his situation and his conscience.

The first single record he ever released became a big hit. "Ain't No Sunshine (when you're gone)" became a gold record and won a 1972 Grammy Award as best rhythm 'n' blues song for Withers, who also wrote it. More hits followed, "Grandma's Hands," "Lean on Me" and "Use Me." Withers traveled steadily, performing, for two years.

Some people take to that kind of happening in their lives without a second thought. Others think a lot about the changes they're going through. Withers is one of the thinkers.

His background is fairly unusual for a recording artist. He's 36 now and he didn't go into music until he was 33. He had been born in Slab Fork, W. Va., youngest of six children. "The coal mining communities have some funny names. It was probably a fork in a vein of coal or something."

Then he spent nine years in the Navy, where a speech therapist cleared up his childhood stutter. "Most of the time spent in the military was very lonely. Everybody has given their fathers instructions to leave military men alone. And you don't have very much money." Then came five years working in a factory. "You meet people there all with the same level of taste. The slick people don't work in factories. They get around that."

Withers hadn't even been listening to music during most of that time. If he went where it was playing in the background, he more or less ignored it. Then, he suddenly began to listen and "I saw that the people who were making music got attention from the ladies. They never seemed to be socially left out. You don't go into an attention-getting situation unless you want attention."

He met Booker T. Jones and negotiated a contract with Sussex Records, where he has remained. At first it was a subsidiary of Buddah; now it has gone independent. LPs are "Just as I Am," "Still Bill," "Live at Carnegie Hall" and "Justments." His newest single is "You."

He usually writes songs, he says, when he is coming up from an emotional setback or nostalgic or feeling lonely.

The kind of person he is, Withers explains, is idealistic, somewhat sentimental, religious. About his late mother, he says, "She never let me down. She wanted me to be a gentleman, a gentleman for real, even when you don't have to be. No matter what I did, she accepted me. She's the last person I'm sure of that about. A lot of times I had friends because I sold records. You have to earn the time people spend with you in this business."

Withers experienced some shocks, disillusionments and disappointments after he became a performer. "I was so-called naive coming into this business. New words started coming into my life — like handsome. Show business men and women are much bolder than a bunch of factory workers. It's easy for the man in the street to say he would never do this and that; if he had the opportunity he would probably faint. Let him walk out of a dressing room and have one of the most gorgeous ladies he has ever seen invite him home with her. Put him in a room where everybody is taking dope and he wants to be 'with it.'"

"The hardest thing for a conventionally brought-up male to adjust to is that it is not really the way they told you it was. You're not going to find that innocence they told you to look for and protect."

"You can make life miserable for those around you by giving lectures. You can go the other way and make rationalizations for yourself that the world is just changing and you have to go along with it. I hope it doesn't become necessary for me to make any more rationalizations than I have already made. It doesn't ease anything for me."

"When I was taking time off I was looking for an emotional

and moral balance. It was hard for me to find because I was in a marriage that wasn't working. Coming from a basic religious situation, marriages work. You go ahead and make it work. It was a big disappointment to me; I still haven't figured it out. For a while I was protecting my ego. I said it doesn't make any difference and I feel relieved that the problems that were there are not there any more. Neither are the pleasures. I thought, with me not getting married until I was 34, it would last, and it didn't last a year and a half.

"I miss romance. It was very important to me, and it is gone. Probably one of the reasons I got married is that I wanted romance. I'm not tough emotionally."

"The first six months I traveled, I would delay leaving the dressing room so I wouldn't miss any of those pretty ladies that would come around. Now I find myself looking less and less for situations where there are going to be a lot of pretty ladies around. It's not going to be any romance anyway. It's going to be flat out and straight ahead. Now that I've had the attention, I look for time alone again. It is easy for me sometimes to be quiet and just dream."

Withers likes performing and

also producing. He will produce part of Gladys Knight's next LP. He manages himself, saying that he doesn't want to be a pampered show business pet under somebody else's paternalistic direction. He has looked at some movie scripts but didn't like the "steal $1 million worth of dope and live happily with the chicks" plots that were offered. "When you're making fantasies like that, you're making things for people to aspire to. Most of us function off some kind of imagination that came out of some movie or TV."

He's for women using their brains, Withers says, but with a wife he wants to be the leader. He says someday he would like to have a wife to provide for and children to teach how to live in a world always getting more complex.

"I want to live in stability. I came a performer. "I was socially naive coming into this business. New words started coming into my life — like handsome. Show business men and women are much bolder than a bunch of factory workers. It's easy for the man in the street to say he would never do this and that; if he had the opportunity he would probably faint. Let him walk out of a dressing room and have one of the most gorgeous ladies he has ever seen invite him home with her. Put him in a room where everybody is taking dope and he wants to be 'with it.'"

"The hardest thing for a conventionally brought-up male to adjust to is that it is not really the way they told you it was. You're not going to find that innocence they told you to look for and protect."

"You can make life miserable for those around you by giving lectures. You can go the other way and make rationalizations for yourself that the world is just changing and you have to go along with it. I hope it doesn't become necessary for me to make any more rationalizations than I have already made. It doesn't ease anything for me."

"When I was taking time off I was looking for an emotional

FAITHFUL Indian companion to the Lone Ranger. Tonto has found a new profession. Jay Silverheels, who portrayed Tonto on the popular television western several years ago, made his debut as a harness race driver at Louisville Downs.

want to give back some things to God, who has given so much out to me.

"I don't want to be a performing adolescent until I die. I hope there is another step. Another growth step."

AM I CRAZY?
I must be crazy!

I spend thousands of dollars of my firm money, running ads for ambitious, adventurous people and I can't seem to find one good person interested in $15,000 to $20,000 his first year.

Is everyone in Southeast Missouri happy with his job? I can't believe it!

If you are not and want a really great opportunity with an international company, CALL ME NOW before I am carted off to the funny farm!

We offer a career opportunity worthy of a real salesman and will prove it to you at your interview.

We manufacture and market a line of industrial maintenance-chemicals used throughout the business world. Sales are booming and so are our salesmen's earnings. High commissions are paid monthly with excellent weekly draws. Benefits include profit sharing, hospitalization, major medical, plus a year end bonus.

We want a person who has successfully sold tangibles or is confident in his desire to do so. An aggressive representative who can build lasting associations with customers through return visits, while pressing for an order on each call.

You should have a stable personal and job background and own a late model car.

Meet my challenge and help me prove my sanity.

Curtis says Congress is place for economic summit

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Calling President Ford's economic summit now under way in the nation's capital a "mistake," senatorial candidate Thomas Curtis said Friday the Congress is the one that should be having a summit.

"It's Congress that has the (appropriation) power," said the Republican challenger of Democratic incumbent Thomas F. Eagleton at a news conference here. "The President can't spend one dollar more than the Congress authorizes."

But Curtis quickly pointed out that "if Congress is so lacking in leadership, then the President should exercise some leadership," and he expressed hope that the summit may yield some "great benefits."

The former nine-term congressman from St. Louis, who lost to Eagleton in 1968 by only 37,000 votes, laid the blame for the economic situation with high federal spending, which he said was "feeding the flames of inflation."

"We don't need many summits to zero in on what (the problem) is — it's government spending," Curtis said.

At the outset of the meeting with the press, Curtis announced that GOP Lt. Gov. William Phelps and national GOP committeewoman Rosemary Ginn of Columbia will serve as co-chairpersons of his senatorial campaign, and Mrs. Ginn immediately attacked Eagleton as "one of the biggest spenders in Washington."

Contending the state's junior senator does not represent the people of Missouri, Mrs. Ginn charged, "He votes one way and then tells the people he feels another."

Curtis again challenged Eagleton to debate the issues prior to the November election, and while claiming to still be hopeful a debate can be arranged, he indicated there probably would be none.

"Maybe he doesn't have the talents to debate," the Republican said of his Democratic opponent. "I took on all comers when I was in the House."

Curtis pledged that, if elected, he would continue his record of voting against spending measures, a record established in the waning years of his term in the U.S. House, because "we have to get on top of inflation."

To balance the national budget, Curtis proposed a five-year program of trimming about $5 billion annually from the budget, but he cautioned that the process employ "not the meat ax cut but the scalpel."

"No program is sacrosanct," he claimed. "Every program must be reviewed. There's fat in all these things."

Curtis recommended that the state's 8 per cent interest rate ceiling be increased because he said the ceiling has dried up the housing industry.

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — years, the focus of the National concern over American public's chief economic issues could have a devastating effect on President Ford's popularity with voters, problems overshadow worry about international problems by the widest margin recorded in Gallup surveys since the 1930s, the pollster said.

Dr. George Gallup Jr., told a standing-room-only crowd at Wichita State University that the high cost of living may soon end Ford's "miniera of good feeling."

"While President Ford starts his presidency with a strong vote of confidence from his fellow Americans, the nation's current obsession with the economy and high prices could have a devastating effect on his standing with the public," Gallup said.

Every president since Truman has been faced with public unhappiness over the economy, but President Ford is confronted with acute public attention on economic issues, he added.

"For the first time in many years, the focus of the National concern over American public's chief economic issues could have a devastating effect on President Ford's popularity with voters, problems overshadow worry about international problems by the widest margin recorded in Gallup surveys since the 1930s, the pollster said.

At the same time, Americans are widely disillusioned with the political system because of the Watergate scandal, Gallup said.

Seamus MacNeill, principal of the Scottish College of Piping, said he has heard plastic pipes in Canada and they "seem to play just as well."
